The New-York Times.

VOL. XXII.....NO. 6593. NEW-YORK, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1872. PRICE FOUR CENTS.

THE LAST CHARGE.

Vote for the Republican Candidates for Assembly.

Cast Your Ballots for the Republican Congressional Nominees.

Greeley and His Kuklux Friends at the South.

Vote for William F. Havemeyer for Mayor.

Remember that the Polls Close at 4 O'clock.

Remember that the polls open at 6 A. M. and close at 4 P. M. in the City, and do not lose your vote by failing to be in time; this is a legal holiday and you have the whole day.

Vote for Assemblyman.

Four Assembly Districts in this City are absolutely certain for the Republicans if they do not throw away a sure thing by neglecting to vote for their nominees. These districts are the Seventh, where Geo. W. Clarke is the candidate; the Ninth, where Stephen Pell should be voted; the Eleventh, where A. B. Cornell has allowed his name to be used, and the Thirteenth, where Charles Blackie has been nominated. It so happens that no districts have presented more acceptable Republican candidates than these, and they should all be elected by large majorities. We should elect Republicans in several other City districts, but especially Jacob M. Patterson, Jr., in the Tenth, William T. Graff in the Seventeenth, Bernard Biclin in the Eighteenth, and Wm. Haw, Jr., in the Twenty-first. In all the districts the nominees are every way creditable, and should receive the vote of every Republican. Some of them may be lost by only a few Republicans acting upon the idea that an Assemblyman more or less is a matter of no consequence, and, therefore, neglecting to vote. All such Republicans should remember that Assemblymen make the laws that most nearly affect us, and that no officers to be voted for today are more important to the local interests of the people. No one who votes for Grant will have done his whole duty today until he has voted for the Republican candidate for Assembly in his district.

Let no Republican fail to be at the polls before 4 o'clock, as they close at that hour; remember this is a legal holiday; go to the polls early, and then spend the day in seeing that every other Republican votes the right ticket.

Queens County—First Assembly District.

In this district, David Rogers, the last candidate put up against Hon. L. B. Prince, has written a letter declining. The coalitionists have been unlucky as to a candidate in this district. They first nominated Hon. Wm. H. Onderdonk, their strongest man, but he declined. Then Hon. J. B. Pearsall was named, and he declined. Hon. Stephen Taber, ex-member of Congress, was then approached, but would not consent. Lastly, Dr. David Rogers, a Liberal, was put up, and now, like David Crockett's coon, he has "come down." The people had so emphatically expressed their confidence in Mr. Prince that no one cared to risk the encounter.

Twenty-First Assembly District.

Wm. Haw, Jr., is making a stout fight against the hordes of Tammany in the Twenty-first Assembly District with every prospect of success. His opponent, Crary, has the active help of Manierre, and that of itself ought to insure his election. Let every friend of reform vote for Haw.

This is a legal holiday. Be up early, and at the polls early, for they close at 4 o'clock P. M.

First Congressional District.

We can assure the Republicans in this district that there is every prospect of success. All that is required is vigorous action. Mr. Scudder, our candidate, will run largely ahead of the ticket in Huntington, his own town, as well as in other localities, more than balancing the home popularity of Mr. Covert in Flushing. Let every Republican devote to-morrow to his country, especially working for the Congressional ticket, and a victory is assured. By the best canvass that can be made, Mr. Scudder will have at least 200 majority; but the difficulty of getting voters out, consequent on the ho se disease, makes it incumbent on all to make a special effort.

The Ninth Congressional District.

The voters of the Ninth Congressional District of this City have a most important duty to perform today. They have three candidates before them, each one of whom is eager to secure the right to represent them in the Forty-third Congress. Two of these men, "Big Judge," Michael Connolly, and ex-Tammany Clerk of Board of Aldermen, John Hardy, are notoriously unfit to occupy such an honored position. Connolly is ignorant, gross, and unprincipled; and Hardy has for years been one of the most irrepressible champions of the men who have robbed the tax-payers of millions of dollars. The third candidate is David B. Mellish, a man against whose character not one word of a disparaging nature has been said. He is the nominee of the Reformers, and if the respectable voters do their duty today he will be elected.

Do not be disfranchised by failing to remember that this year the polls close at 4 o'clock P. M. Go early; and after voting—this being a legal holiday—spend the time in seeing that there are no laggards.

Mr. S. S. Cox.

Mr. "Sunset" Cox, says the Tribune, "was a consistent and enthusiastic war Democrat." Indeed! Why, then, did the Tribune for years steadily denounce him as a "Copperhead?" Until he came to the support of Greeley and Brown, Cox was a "Copperhead" and a "carpet-bagger," who had come to New-York to push his political fortunes. Now he is "a consistent and enthusiastic war Democrat," and "a candid and fearless critic of the abuses of the present Administration." As the Professor yesterday asked, what need should be paid to the recommendations of those who "commend or denounce according to the exigencies of their canvass?"

Tammany Brooks.

The working men of the Sixth Congressional District must not cast their ballots for James Brooks today, under the delusion that he has been one of their very best friends. As an employer himself, it is well known that he can scarcely be outdone in illiberality. He and his brother have been for years enriching themselves by the oppression of those of their employes who have not been subject to the control of labor unions. If he had his way, more than two-thirds of the foreign-born citizens of the Sixth District would be today without the right to vote, and Dr. Adolph G. Dunn, his opponent, would be ineligible as a candidate. As the nominee of Tammany Hall, and the defender, through his paper, of the corrupt Ring, which was the outgrowth of that combination, he ought to be obnoxious to all the honest residents of the district, without regard to party. If voters do their duty today at the polls, his defeat can be accomplished.

Vote before you do anything else, as the polls close at 4 P. M., and there may be a rush in the afternoon; this is a legal holiday, and you lose nothing by postponing your own business for that of your country.

Kuklux and Greeley.

The Professor yesterday said of Mr. Greeley that, "as a Republican, he has ever insisted on the suppression of the Kuklux outrages." * * * "Why, then, is he widely denounced as an apostate and a renegade?" Mr. Greeley is looked upon as an apostate and a renegade, for the reason, among others, that as a Democrat he now insists on the removal of the very means of suppressing Kuklux outrages which, formerly as a Republican, he firmly supported. Has the Professor any more conundrums?

Mr. Greeley and Secession in 1860 and 1872.

If the Cotton States shall decide that they can do better out of the Union than in it, we insist on letting them go in peace. * * * Whenever a considerable section of our Union shall deliberately resolve to go out, we shall resist all coercive measures designed to keep it in.—Nov. 9, 1860.

1872.

And now, today, if the nation were thus imperiled, and there were just two modes of saving it, to trust to the chances of civil war or to the result of a free vote by the Southern people, I would very greatly prefer to risk the latter chance rather than the former.—New-York Tribune Report of Speech at Pittsburg, Sept. 19, 1872.

The enemy is on the run. Today is a legal holiday. Devote it to converting the retreat into a rout. But you must be on hand before 4 o'clock P. M., as the polls close at that hour.

The Latest Slander.

Last and meanest among the many slanders put forth by the Tribune during the campaign, was the charge that Hon. Thomas C. Platt, Republican candidate for Congress in the Twenty-seventh District, had been engaged in attempts to bribe the voters of his district into voting for him. As nobody has ever supposed that he was not absolutely certain of a very large majority in the district, the silliness of the bald falsehood to which some obscure "Liberal" was found to make oath, was so manifest that Mr. Platt might have saved himself the trouble of denying it. That he has denied it is, of course, ample reason for the Tribune's repeating the story.

Look to Your Ballots.

Republicans should look closely at their ballots before depositing them in the boxes. We understand that the usual efforts will be made to mislead voters by counterfeit ballots, containing a portion only of the regular Republican tickets. For instance, Republican ballots will be distributed, it is believed, in which the name of Mr. Benjamin K. Phelps, the regular nominee for District-Attorney, is replaced by that of Donohue, the opposition candidate. Don't vote your tickets without reading them first.

Vote early, as the polls close at 4 P. M. Today is a legal holiday, and you can give it all to the cause.

Assistant Aldermen.

Republicans in the Seventh Assembly District should not fail to vote for Mr. Thomas L. Thornell for Assistant Alderman. He is every way worthy of their suffrages, and the office for which he is a candidate is one of great importance to the City.

What Ought To Be Done.

Michael Norton can be defeated in the Fifth Assembly District today if all the respectable men concentrate their power upon his opponent, Austin Leake. In point of character the difference between these two men is as different as day-light is from darkness. Norton has in the past been the representative of the Municipal thieves. Leake is pledged to the side of honesty and reform. Voters of the Fifth, you owe it to yourselves to elect Leake to the Assembly today.

Avoid the afternoon crush at the polls, which close at 4 o'clock, by going early. This is a legal holiday, and you cannot attend to your private business, if you should be so disposed.

Judge Bedford's Idea of "A Well-Spent Life."

In the Winter of 1870-71, Watson, the reputed author of all the plundering schemes of Tammany, died suddenly. Judge Bedford eulogized him as follows in a speech before the Blossom Club:

"No man had known Mr. Watson, while living, better than he did, and he stood in the midst of his associates to attest, better than any one living, his many virtues and high qualifications, that endeared him to a large circle of friends that would cling to his memory and ever cherish and emulate the higher examples of his well-spent life. He is gone from among us, and I consider it a high privilege to stand here as his personal and intimate friend while living, and while dead to mingle my tears freely with yours over the grave of our departed and worthy associate."

Go direct from your home, this morning, to the polls, for they close at 4 o'clock P. M.; and if you delay, you may be crowded out.

Depew's Fraud.

What the World thought of Chauncey Depew in August, 1865, was as follows:

"* * * It is patent to every person with intelligence enough to be entitled to an opinion that Secretary Depew's census is a bold, arrant cheat, intended to swindle this part of the State out of its due weight in the Legislature. The wriggling subterfuges of the Tribune only serve to make the fraud more apparent."—Aug. 23, 1865.

Doubtless it thinks the same thing now—but don't say so.

The Pool-Selling Last Night.

The French pool-selling in the Astor House Rotunda, yesterday, was very lively during the day. Pools were only sold on Governor and Mayor. At 1 o'clock Dix stood at 107 and Kernan at 45; O'Brien stood at 133, Havemeyer at 130, and Lawrence at 61. At 4 o'clock Dix stood at 165 and Kernan at 59. A bet of $500 to $400 was made by one party that Grant would carry the State by 30,000. This was only taken up once. The same individual also offered to bet even that Grant would carry Indiana by 10,000 majority; this bet was not taken up at all. At the closing of the afternoon's sale of pools, O'Brien was largely ahead.

The French pools at Thomas', up-town, in the evening, were largely patronized, it being impossible for the pool seller to hand out tickets and take money as fast as occasion required. At 10 o'clock O'Brien was largely the favorite, the pools standing: O'Brien, 473; Havemeyer, 371; Lawrence, 167. The pools for Governor sold: Dix, 161; Kernan, 53.

At Johnson's, the betting was spirited, the pools sold being chiefly upon the elections in New-York State, Pennsylvania and New-York City. In the early part of the evening, the betting upon Mayor stood nearly even between Havemeyer and O'Brien, but O'Brien rapidly grew into favor, and at 10 o'clock pools sold: O'Brien, $110; Havemeyer, $65; Lawrence, $35. Very large sums of money were involved, many first choices being sold at $250, $500 and $1,000.

There were few bets upon the gubernatorial election, it being conceded that Gen. Dix will make a clean sweep of the State.

Several bets of $250 to $190 were made that Gen. Grant will carry Pennsylvania by 45,000 majority.

Nobody will lose anything by going early to the polls, which close at 4 o'clock P. M., for this is a legal holiday, and no private business can be done.

OFFICERS TO BE CHOSEN.

A Complete Statement of the Offices to be Filled in the Several States Today.

Elections will be held today in all the States of the Union, except Louisiana, as stated below:

Alabama will choose ten electors, eight members of Congress, State officers, and a Legislature, which will elect a United States Senator, in place of Hon. George E. Spencer, Republican.

Arkansas will choose six electors, four members of Congress, State officers, and a Legislature, which will elect a United States Senator, in place of Hon. Benjamin F. Rice, Greeleyite.

California will choose six electors and four members of Congress.

Connecticut will choose six electors, and, in the First District, a member of the present Congress, in place of Hon. Julius L. Strong, Republican, deceased.

Delaware will choose three electors and one member of Congress.

Florida will elect four electors, two members of Congress, Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, and a Legislature which will elect a United States Senator in place of Hon. Thomas W. Osborn, Republican.

Georgia will elect eleven electors and nine members of Congress.

Illinois will elect twenty-one electors, nineteen members of Congress, State officers, and a Legislature which will elect a United States Senator in place of Hon. Lyman Trumbull, Greeleyite.

Indiana will elect fifteen electors.

Iowa will elect eleven electors, nine members of Congress, minor State officers, and a Legislature which will elect a United States Senator in place of Hon. James Harlan, Republican.

Kansas will elect five electors, three members of Congress, State officers, and a Legislature which will elect a United States Senator in place of Hon. Samuel C. Pomeroy, Republican.

Kentucky will elect twelve electors and ten members of Congress.

Louisiana yesterday elected eight electors, six members of Congress, State officers and a Legislature, which will elect a United States Senator, in place of Hon. William Pitt Kellogg, Republican.

Maine will elect seven electors.

Maryland will elect eight electors and six members of Congress.

Massachusetts will elect thirteen electors, eleven members of Congress, State officers, and a Legislature, which will probably be called upon to elect a United States Senator in place of Hon. Henry Wilson, Republican.

Nebraska will elect three electors.

Nevada will elect three electors, one member of Congress, Judge of the Supreme Court of the State, State Printer, and a Legislature which will elect a United States Senator in place of Hon. James W. Nye, Republican.

New-Hampshire will elect five electors.

New-Jersey will elect nine electors and seven members of Congress.

New-York will elect thirty-five electors, thirty-three members of Congress, State officers, and the Assembly, which, with the Senate elected last year, will elect a United States Senator in place of Hon. Roscoe Conkling, Republican.

North Carolina will elect ten electors.

Ohio will elect twenty-two electors.

Oregon will elect three electors.

Pennsylvania will elect twenty-nine electors.

Rhode Island will elect four electors and two members of Congress.

South Carolina will elect seven electors.

Tennessee will elect twelve electors and ten members of Congress.

Texas will elect eight electors and six members of Congress. The election in this State will continue four days.

Vermont will elect five electors.

Virginia will elect eleven electors and nine members of Congress.

West Virginia will elect five electors.

Wisconsin will elect ten electors, eight members of Congress, and a Legislature which will elect a United States Senator in place of Hon. Timothy O. Howe, Republican.

The Electoral College will be composed of 366 members; necessary for a choice, 184.

The polls open at 6 A. M., and close at 4 P. M., in this City. Vote early, and then spend the time in getting others to vote. This being a legal holiday, when you cannot attend to your own affairs, you make no sacrifice in giving these few hours to your country.

Beware of Frauds.

It is reported that in Long Island City, (Hunter's Point, Blissville, &c.,) opposite New-York, in Queen's County, persons have been registered fraudulently to a very large extent, for the purpose of voting against Henry L. Scudder for Congress and the Republican State and Assembly tickets. The polls will be watched, and if frauds are consummated, as may be shown by the vote, we have every assurance, in advance, that the whole poll of Long Island City will be thrown out at Washington, and also at Albany. Let the vote everywhere be honestly taken.—Evening Post.

NEW-YORK.

Republican Parade at Poughkeepsie—Greeley's Friends Attack the Procession—A Dastardly Outrage.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 4.—There was a magnificent Tanner's parade here to-night, and the city was brilliantly illuminated. Hundreds upon hundreds of torches were in line, and many of Nast's caricatures were faithfully reproduced. At many places the procession was attacked with bricks and stones, and fifteen persons were severely wounded. The main attack seemed to occur on the corner of Union and Clover streets, and Mill and Clover streets. One man will lose an eye. There seemed to be an organized plan of attack, and it was without doubt carried out successfully. There is intense feeling here over the matter, and all good citizens of both parties unite in denouncing the outrage.

CONNECTICUT.

Activity of the Republicans—Gen. Hawley's Prospects Good.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 4.—The Republicans of Connecticut are hopeful of carrying the State to-morrow, and have great confidence in their ability to elect Gen. Hawley to Congress from this district. The General this evening made a masterly speech to 2,500 people in the Opera-house. Mr. Eaton, in a smaller hall, which will hold about 1,500, spoke also. The whole town is alive with excitement.

LOUISIANA FOR GRANT

Result of the Presidential and State Election Yesterday.

The State Republican by 30,000 Despite Fraud and Intimidation.

Returns Come in Slowly---United States Supervisors of Election Scrutinizing the Vote.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

NEW-ORLEANS, Nov. 4—7:10 P. M.—The election passed off quietly. Many of the State supervisors of the city and parishes have perpetrated gross frauds, refusing to legal voters their right to vote.

The news as to the Presidential and Congressional tickets, and the vote for Kellogg for Governor is very favorable. Kellogg runs largely ahead of his ticket.

The polls closed at 7 P. M., and the counting of the votes has just begun. District-Attorney Beckwith has notified the United States Supervisors of Election that, under the United States laws, they have the right to supervise the counting and canvassing of the vote for the entire ticket, both general and State.

The ballot-boxes for this parish have been brought to Mechanics' Institute, where the canvass is proceeding. The city supervisors have made no opposition to the presence of the United States supervisors, and they are carefully watching the count, to detect and prevent fraud.

The following returns have been received:

In New-Iberia, capital of the Parish of Iberia, the Republican ticket is largely ahead.

In Delta, Madison Parish, one polling precinct heard from shows 500 Republican majority, in a whole vote of 546.

Algiers, on the right bank of the river, the Fifteenth Ward of the city, gives 1,200 Republican majority.

Gen. Longstreet reports the State safe by 30,000 majority for Grant and Wilson and Kellogg.

Later Returns—Large Republican Gains—The Republican Congressmen Probably all Elected.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

NEW-ORLEANS, Nov. 4—12 M.—Moorehouse Parish, which, in 1868, gave Grant but one majority, now gives 500 Republican majority.

Ouachita Parish, the home of McEnery, the "Liberal" candidate for Governor, gives 600 Republican majority.

The parishes of Union, Jackson, Claiborne, and Richland, Democratic, report large Republican gains. Morey, Republican candidate for Congress, in the Fifth District, claims his re-election by a handsome majority.

Sheldon is reported elected in the Second District.

The Parish of Jefferson gives 2,000 Republican majority.

Upon this basis the State is carried by between 15,000 and 20,000.

WASHINGTON.

Deserted Appearance of the Streets—The Election of Today—Fenton "Throws up the Sponge."

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The streets have today presented a lonesome and deserted appearance. Very few horses have been used. No street-cars have been running. The merchants have been compelled to buy wheel-barrows and hand-carts and employ men to deliver goods to their customers. Thus rapidly has the horse distemper developed since Saturday.

THE ELECTION.

The dullness of the city is increased by the absence of great numbers of the non-resident population, who have gone home to vote. Business is almost at a stand-still among those who are most directly interested in the result of to-morrow's election. There is very little excitement. No one is found in any quarter to claim the election of Mr. Greeley, or doubt that of President Grant. The interest centres in New-York State, and the returns from the City will be eagerly awaited. If Mr. Greeley should receive no more than 25,000 or 30,000 majority there, there will be hardly any anxiety or excitement about the rest of the returns. The returns received by the TIMES office will be consciously bulletined.

FENTON SURRENDERS.

As an evidence of the complete failure of the confederation, it may be stated that Mr. Fenton, in a private letter, gives up the contest in general and the State of New-York in particular. The Liberals and Democrats have abandoned their sinking vessel, and the candidates for office are striking out each for himself. All the information is full of cheer for Republicans.

RUBINSTEIN IN WASHINGTON.

The first concert of the Rubinstein troupe was given at Lincoln Hall, to-night, to a very large and fashionable audience. Rubinstein was received with much enthusiasm, and his execution exceeded by far the generally high expectations which had been formed of his merits.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

THE DISCRIMINATING DUTY.

The Treasury Department has received a communication from the Boston Board of Trade, asking whether the ten per cent. discriminating duty established by the President's recent proclamation, is to be held applicable to goods afloat at the time of the proclamation. The Department holds that the discriminating duty applies to all goods arriving in French vessels from other than French ports on and after the 30th ultimo, and that whatever may be the hardships of the case, it has no discretion to hold otherwise, under the terms of the proclamation

BRITISH CLAIMS.

The American and British Claims Commission has given permission to take testimony in various cases. The Commission allowed the demurrer of United States counsel in case No. 29, Herndon Bach, administrator; and also allowed the demurrer of Her Majesty's counsel in case No. 17, William Wheeler Hubbell. The claim of the memorialist in the latter case set up a supposed implied contract on the part of Her Majesty's Government to compensate him as the alleged inventor of certain improvements in fire-arms, averred to have been used in the British service. The claimant did not appear to have had any property in his alleged invention in England, and even if there were such contract, express or implied, such contract would be neither within the terms nor within the intent and meaning of the treaty creating this tribunal. On demurrer in cases 205, James B. Hailey, administrator; 212, John C. Ferris; 263, Joseph B. Haycock; 265, Henry Moody, administrator; 298, C. Eugenia O'Brien, administratrix; 304, Emelia G. Potter, and 445, Janet Mason, administratrix, the following decision was rendered: These demurrers are overruled. the majority of the Commissioners being of opinion that where the claim is by an administrator in respect of injury to the property of an intestate, who was exclusively a British subject, and the beneficiaries of British subjects as well as American citizens, the claim may be prosecuted for their benefit. The Commissioners are of opinion that the particular nationality of the administrator does not affect the question.

THE KUKLUX.

Greeley's Friends at Work in Kentucky—They Hang a Man, His Wife, and Daughter to the Same Tree.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 4.—The Kuklux are operating in various points in Central Kentucky for the purpose of intimidating Republican voters. In this (Fayette) County they took out Geo. Hawkins, his wife, and his daughter, on Friday night last, and hung all three to the same limb of a tree. Hawkins leaves a family of helpless children. He was a quiet, inoffensive man, and his only crime was being a Republican. The Kuklux charged no other.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 4.—A special dispatch says that on Friday night a band of armed men went to the house of Samuel Hawkins, a negro, living in Hickman Precinct, Fayette County, Ky., and took him, his wife, and daughter away in the direction of Licking River. Their whereabouts or fate has not been ascertained.

THE LATE JOHN A. GRISWOLD.

Funeral Services at Troy—Procession of Iron-Workers to the Cars—Interment at Oakwood Cemetery.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

TROY, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The funeral of our deceased and lamented townsman, Hon. John A. Griswold, took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock, at his late residence in Washington Park. For two hours previous to the commencement of the funeral service, the operatives of the Rensselaer Iron-works, and the Bessemer Steel Works, in both of which Mr. Griswold had a controlling interest, together with the employes of the Burden and Corning Iron-works, entered the house to look on the inanimate form of the man whom they all knew and honored. They were succeeded by large numbers of the residents of the city. The features of the deceased were as placid and as natural as they were in life.

The obsequies began by the singing of a dirge by a quartet choir. Rev. Dr. Vincent, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, read appropriate scriptural selections. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Irwin, of the Fifth-street Presbyterian Church. At its conclusion the hymn, "Abide with Me," was sung by the choir, and the benediction pronounced by Rev. Dr. Vincent. The relatives of Mr. Griswold then passed in front of the coffin, and gazed for the last time upon the departed. The body was then placed upon a bier, and carried to the Adams-street Railroad Station, where it was put into a car hung with mourning; the other cars of the train contained the relatives and personal friends. The iron-workers, numbering over 3 000, together with the trustees and directors of the various financial corporations with which Mr. Griswold was connected, formed the escort, which preceded the coffin while it was being carried from the house to the cars. The body was taken to Oakwood Cemetery, where, after appropriate services, it was deposited in a vault.

Business was generally suspended, and the church-bells tolled while the funeral was taking place. Hon. Roscoe Conkling, of Utica; Geo. Crocker, Mr. McAuley, and C. W. Griswold, of New-York; E. Corning, of Albany; John T. Winslow, of Poughkeepsie; David Robinson, David Cowee, Joseph M. Warren, John L. Manning, Benj. N. Hall, and James Forsyth were the pall-bearers.

THE BAPTISTS.

Action of the Baptist Ministers of Boston and Vicinity—"Close Communion" Resolution Maintained.

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—At a weekly conference of the Baptist Clergy of Boston and vicinity today, the Committee on the subject of "Close Communion," reported as follows, viz:

First—That Christian baptism is the immersion of a believer in water, in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost and is a profession of his faith in Christ.

Second—That Christian churches ought to be composed of such regenerate persons only as have been baptised on the profession of their faith in Jesus.

Third—That the Lord's Supper ought to be observed by Christian churches only.

Fourth—That invitations of courtesy to partake of the emblems should be given to none but orderly members of churches properly constituted.

The report was accepted.

THE WEATHER.

Synopsis and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—1 A. M.—In the Atlantic States, northerly to easterly winds now prevail, with high barometers and clear weather in the Middle and New-England States, and increasing cloudiness in the South Atlantic States; in the Gulf States, south-easterly winds, cloudy weather and rain; on the lower lakes, south-easterly winds, extending with rain to the Upper Mississippi Valley and thence to Tennessee; in the North-west and on Lake Superior, brisk north-easterly winds, threatening weather and rain.

PROBABILITIES.

In New-England and the Middle States, high barometer, northerly to north easterly winds, and partly cloudy weather; in the South Atlantic and Gulf States, cloudy weather, south-easterly winds, and rain; on the upper lakes and in the North-west, and to the Ohio Valley, brisk north-easterly to south-easterly winds, threatening weather and rain, extending to the lower lakes.

OUR FIRST BABY.

Mr. R. J. De Cordova's Lecture at Association Hall Last Evening.

Notwithstanding the political excitement consequent to the eve of election, Association Hall was crowded last night to hear Mr. De Cordova's first lecture. Mr. De Cordova as a raconteur has hardly a rival, and there is always a certain amount of genuine humor in his compositions, heightened by a charming delivery. The subject, "Our First Baby," commenced with a recital of the honeymoon of Mr. and Mrs. Noddy. Noddy is a bank-clerk, and Cissy is his wife. They are as happy as they can be, but, as the lecturer dryly remarked, all pleasure must be accompanied by pain to be healthful. There is a mother-in-law, a Mrs. Kadiggan, Mrs. Kadiggan, in process of time, drives poor Tom Noddy to the stranger's room, which she had occupied herself, to be supplanted in time by a nurse, and where poor Noddy lodges then, no one can tell. Strange bits of apparel then commence to be made, and the lecturer talked in amusement of garments some six inches long, and others six feet long, all intended for some mysterious being, who was also to be welcomed by a basket bristling with pins, forming the words "Welcome, sweet stranger." The baby is born, and the intense pride of the father humorously displayed. The vaccination, the christening, the baby smothered in a hat and feathers, and the postponement of the christening in consequence of baby's illness, were described. Laugh as the people might at the fun over the baby, still the story of the little sufferer was so naturally drawn as to visibly affect the gentler portion of the audience. Baby gets well, however, and then there is all the trouble over getting it food from a single cow. The christening party was a pretty picture, and drawn most artistically. At last, Mrs. Kadiggan is disconcerted, and Tom and Cissy are happy, and the baby thriving. The lecture, which was frequently interrupted by laughter and applause, concluded with some very pleasant verses.

AMUSEMENTS.

Musical.

NOTES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS.

"La Favorita" was sung at the Academy of Music last evening. Mme. Lucca's performance was attended by the usual results: it attracted a large audience, and wrought an impression shown by the enforced repetition of the duets with the baritone, and the tenor, and of "O Mio Fernando," while the artist's acting and prodigious vocal power in the last act, awoke unbounded enthusiasm. Wednesday, "Crispino e la Comare" will be given with Miss Kellogg. Mme. Lucca will be heard again as Cherubino, in "Le Nozze," on Friday....The present week is to be the last of Mlle. Aimée's sojourn at the Olympic Theatre. Yesterday that foremost of opera-bouffe artists was listened to in "La Périchole," and this night she may be applauded in "Barbe-Bleue." Between the acts, last evening, an infant tenor, Romeo Dionesi by name, sang "M'appari," from "Martha," and "La Stella Confidente." The capital work of Mlle. Aimée and her associates makes co-operation of the kind afforded by most juvenile prodigies, and especially by Romeo Dionesi, quite superfluous....We once more remind the reader that the first of Mr. Theodore Thomas' symphony concerts is to occur at Steinway Hall, on Saturday evening next. The programme is of exceeding interest, and the efforts of an American tenor, Mr. George L. Osgood, will diversify most pleasantly, we are assured, the admirable performances of Mr. Thomas' orchestra.

Dramatic.

"THE SILVER DEMON" AT WOOD'S THEATRE.

Mr. James Barnes' burlesque of the "Silver Demon" was produced at this establishment last evening. Like most entertainments of this character, it affords numerous opportunities for the introduction of songs, dances, marches, gymnastic feats, puns, hits at politicians and public men generally, and witty allusions to the local topics of the day. Misses Pauline Markham, Belle Howitt, Grattan, Wood, Weber, Mosbier and Arnott appeared in the piece last evening, with Messrs. Mestayer, Sheldon, Hall and Atkins. The scenery is all new; the dresses are gorgeous and the music is inspiriting. The piece will be given every evening during the week, and at the matinées Mlle. Zoe will act in the "The Angel of Midnight." Next Monday Mr. Maeder's drama of "Buffalo Bill" will be produced.

The Recovered Treasure from the Americas.

From the San Francisco Bulletin, Oct 26.

A portion of the treasure recovered from the remains of the steamer America, by diverse persons, and brought to San Francisco on the Colorado, was trucked to the office of the San Francisco Assaying and Refining Works, yesterday and exposed to the gaze of a few persons. Twenty-three boxes of melted coin, weighing from 200 to 400 pounds each, were scattered about the floor of the room, and besides there were piles of bars and irregular masses of valuable metal lying around loose. Two pieces of the melted mass, with a length each of about three feet, a width of eighteen inches, and weighing one hundred pounds, looked like a section of frozen clay bristling with oysters. These oysters were twenty-dollar pieces, Mexican dollars and half-dollars of American coinage, with dimes and half-dimes for young oysters, and iron spikes, bits of brass and steel to represent the shell-fish that are wont to burrow in the bed of the ocean, the whole forming a valuable specimen of crustacea. In some instances the coins are only welded together in rolls, and at other times they form one lava-like gob. The melted matter and the coins are of a deep green color.

The large bars of bullion were less affected by the fire than the coin, and do not appear to have lost much in weight. The metal is to be reconed. Two twenty-dollar pieces in the lot were kindly donated to the representatives of the Press, who were among the reliable persons present, and had not the coins been welded to a bar, they would have been taken away. Three hundred thousand dollars' worth of treasure, half melted, colored by fire and the action of the water, is a curiosity that few people have ever had an opportunity to see. Even the audacious and enterprising Barnum could not give such a show.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—The excitement over the defeat of the Country Reform bill has subsided. The bill will again be introduced on the reopening of the Diet.

The Emperor of Russia has written an autograph letter to Prince Charles, brother of the Emperor of Germany, on the occasion of the fifteth anniversary of his appointment to the honorary Colonelcy of a Russian regiment. The Czar calls to mind the glorious deeds of the allied armies of Prussia and Russia when fighting in a holy cause, and hopes the ties of friendship between the countries will endure for generations.

DRESDEN, Nov. 4.—The golden wedding of the King and Queen of Saxony was celebrated here today, with splendid and imposing ceremonies. The occasion was made remarkable by the presence of the Emperor, Empress and Crown Prince of Germany, who thus give proof of the complete restoration of good feeling between the German and Saxon Courts. Among the titled guests were also four Dukes of Saxony, the Archduke Charles Louis of Austria, the two Grand Dukes of Mecklenburg and the Count of Flanders. The open-air festivities were suspended in consequence of the rain, which has been falling incessantly for the last two days.

THE LATE EPIDEMIC.

Very Little Evidence of its Existence Remaining.

The Horses Almost Wholly Recovered—Car Lines Nearly Up to their Standard Trips—The Mortality.

Between the skill of the surgeons and the prevailing fair weather, the horse disease is rapidly disappearing, and under favorable circumstances the end of another week will see the last of that which at one time threatened to paralyze, temporarily at least, the trade of the City. In the all-engrossing political excitement the epidemic has ceased to be a subject of general discussion. The mortality among the horses was not so great yesterday as on the closing days of last week, owing, in some measure, to the rest on Sunday. Strengthened and refreshed by over twenty-four hours of quiet, the horses were out in larger numbers yesterday than on any day for nearly two weeks, and their general appearance was more encouraging. The thoroughfares have nearly resumed their wonted appearance; the cars and stages are running in increased numbers, and within a week few traces of the epidemic will be left. That more horses will die is almost certain, but on the whole New-Yorkers may consider themselves fortunate in having so easily gone through that which might have been very disastrous to all grades of the community.

THE STREET RAILROADS.

Nearly all the railroads of the City increased their running forces yesterday, and are confident of having the former number of cars on the road before the end of the week. The officials, however, complain that the public crowd their cars unnecessarily, compelling them to keep several spare horses at hand, and delaying the resumption of the running of the full number of cars. Yesterday Second-avenue ran all but thirty trips, no cars coming below Grand-street between 5 and 7 P. M., in order that the usual crowding might be avoided. On Third-avenue 121 cars, or fifty-eight less than the full number, were run. On the Third-avenue Grand Central track the full number were run. Fourth-avenue ran as on Saturday, and Sixth-avenue kept up the full line—seventy-six—to Vesey-street—ten cars of the Canal-street branch making ten trips in the afternoon. The Broadway and Seventh-avenue lines continued to run as on Saturday, the Broome-street cars making two trips each. The Eighth-avenue ran the full number of cars to Vesey street, and ten less than the usual number to Canal-street. On the Ninth-avenue line the full running force is twenty cars, at seven trips each. Both tracks of the Belt line were brought into use yesterday, eighty cars being on the road. The Grand and Forty-second-street and the Bleecker-street lines ran on quicker time than on Saturday, and the Dry-dock lines had nearly all their cars on the road.

YESTERDAY'S MORTALITY LIST.

The Police yesterday morning reported dead horses at the following stables in this City: No. 212 Christopher-street, No. 110 Henry-street, One Hundred and Fortieth-street and Boulevard, No. 161 Rivington-street, No. 83 Ridge-street, corner of Eleventh-avenue and Twenty-fifth-street, No. 152 West Twenty-fifth-street, No. 321 Third-street, No. 732 East Twelfth-street, No. 613 East Twelfth-street, No. 134 Greene-street, No. 127 Elizabeth-street, St. John's-lane, No. 263 Washington-street, No. 76 East One Hundred and Twenty-seventh-street, No. 214 East Forty-ninth-street, No. 346 East Sixtieth-street, Fifty-seventh-street, near First-avenue, No. 35 South Fifth-avenue, No. 7 Bridge-street, No. 553 Washington-street, No. 14 Clark-street, No. 267 West Forty-seventh-street, corner of Thirtieth-street and Tenth-avenue, Forty-ninth-street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, No. 452 West Forty-fifth-street, No. 574 Eleventh-avenue, No. 485 Second-avenue, No. 451 Fourth-avenue, No. 487 Second-avenue, two at Lion Brewery, Eighty-eighth-street, near Eleventh-avenue, No. 206 East Twenty-fourth-street, One Hundred and Twenty-seventh-street and Twelfth-avenue, One Hundred and Seventeenth-street, near Tenth-avenue, One Hundred and Thirtieth-street and Twelfth-avenue, No. 464 Broome-street, No. 71 Mangin-street, No. 146 West Twenty-ninth-street, No. 119 Willet-street, No. 636 East Eleventh-street, No. 142 Orchard-street, No. 128 Chrystie-street, No. 87 Wooster-street, One Hundred and Fifteenth-street and Madison-avenue, No. 72 Charles-street, Charles'-lane, four at the Third-avenue Stables, Forty-fourth-street and First-avenue, Seventy-fifth-street, near Avenue A; No. 19 East Fifty-eighth-street, No. 30 Liberty-street, No. 145 Varick-street, No. 604 Greenwich-street, No. 544 West Twenty-eighth-street, No. 502 West Thirtieth-street, One Hundred and Eighty-fifth-street and Tenth-avenue, No. 788 Eighth-avenue, Fiftieth-street, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues; No. 307 East Fortieth-street, No. 349 East Thirty-third-street, No. 231 East Twenty-eighth-street, No. 204 East Thirty-third-street, Sixty-fourth-street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues; Sixty-third-street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues; No. 704 East Sixteenth-street, No. 204 East Twenty-fifth-street.

STEAM AS A SUBSTITUTE.

A steam street-car, constructed on an improved model, fitted with an engine, and designed to be propelled by steam, was received at the depot of the Bleecker-street line yesterday from Lyon, N. Y. The car is about two feet longer and a trifle higher and wider than an ordinary street-car. The engine is fitted in a cylindrical wooden case, half of which projects on the front platform. Iron pipes for heating, similar to those used on ferry-boats, are extended along and beneath the seats. The car will be tried on the road to-morrow, but the officials of other companies do not regard the experiment with favor. They are, however, of the opinion that the experiences of the epidemic may bring about a revolution in the system of street railroading.

DEAD HORSES IN THE STREETS.

A large number of dead horses are still allowed to remain in the streets, the time for removing them seemingly having been extended. In some localities the carcasses have been removed by private subscription.

TRADE, SHIPPING, AND THE MARKETS.

In every branch of the mercantile community, at the markets and along the piers, business was thoroughly resumed yesterday, and but little evidences of the horse disease was apparent. Occasionally a horse would be seen with a bandage about his head and throat, and with a hanging head; but this exception to the general rule of sprightly animals was so rare as not to attract attention, except from those who were looking for such examples. At the cartmen's stands there seemed to be, yesterday, as many waiting for employment as was the case before the epidemic appeared, and the drivers expressed the opinion that the disease had seen its end for the present season. Casual work had resumed former rates, and merchants found no difficulty in securing all the means they required for shipping their goods as soon as they were packed.

The Distemper in Brooklyn.

All the stables report the horse disease gradually abating. Three-fourths of the ordinary number of cars were running yesterday. Twenty-eight deaths were reported at Police Head-quarters. It is confidently expected that by the close of the week the car-riding community will be on wheels again.

The Disease in Oswego—Business Almost at a Stand-Still.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The horse epidemic has reached a critical phase. Few animals are seen on the street, and those generally in a diseased condition. The horses in the country for miles around are afflicted with the malady. A number of deaths are reported in the city since Saturday, several in private stables; also in livery-stables and the barns of the Buffalo and Troy Towing Company; $25 and higher has been offered for the use of teams to-morrow. The effect of the disease upon business is marked, shipping and forwarding interests being almost at a stand-still. Much amusement was created upon the street today by the spectacle of an ox fully harnessed and broken to drive with the bit in the shafts of a milk wagon.

The Horse Disease in the South.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 4.—The horse disease has broken out here. A majority of the work-horses and mules in the city are more or less affected.

GOLDSBORO, N. C., Nov. 4.—The horse disease has made its appearance at this place.

Progress of the Distemper in the Other Cities.

OSWEGO, Nov. 4.—There is no improvement in the horse disease, and but few boats are moving on the canal. A boat-load of barley that left here was towed by oxen on its arrival at Phœnix.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—The prevalence here of the horse disease has caused a partial suspension of business, and all the leading avenues appear to be deserted. There are very few horses on the street, and most of the passenger-cars are withdrawn. Two deaths only are reported. The attempt to run dummies has failed—the wheels not fitting the track of the Fifth and Sixth-street line, which is the only one having dummies. Very few passenger-cars are running at all, and those on the route are drawn by double teams. The clear weather is improving the condition of those sick.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Man-power has been substituted for horse-power in many cases, and the mails of the several Departments are thus carried to and from the Post-office. All the Departments suffer from the sickness of their horses; all those of the Treasury, sixteen in number, are out of working order. No street-cars are running today, and very few hacks are in service. Nineteen-twentieths of the horses in the District of Columbia are suffering with the disease, which is generally of a mild form. Several deaths are reported. The malady has also reached mules. Vehicles are driven slowly, and the animals otherwise treated with care. The belief everywhere prevails that the less animals are worked the more probability there is of their early recovery from sickness.

The President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says persons owning inferior and almost worn-out animals continue to use them, notwithstanding the fact that their beasts exhibit most painful and unmistakable symptoms of the prevailing epidemic. Such plain instances of cruelty and inhumanity must and will receive the immediate attention of the Society.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 4.—The horse disease has disabled nearly all the laboring horses in the city and many in the surrounding country. All of the street-car horses are sick, and the cars have stopped running. This morning the outward-bound mail and express matter missed connection with the trains and boats for want of city transportation.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 4.—There is no new feature in the horse disease. The weather is again cloudy and cold. Vehicles drawn by horses are occasionally seen on the streets. Quite a number of ox-teams have made their appearance, attracting much attention.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 4.—There is, as yet, no abatement of the horse disease here.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The horse epidemic has so far abated that one would not suspect its being here at all. Many horses have recovered, and most are convalescent. The canal horses are less than others, and a few boats are detained.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Four deaths from horse disease are reported today. The infection shows no signs of abatement, but is spreading more widely. It has broken out among the horses at Wilbur, where an immense number of animals are used in drawing stones. Few horses not affected are seen on our streets, and many branches of business are crippled by the prevalence of the distemper. The horse-railroad companies' horses are badly affected, but no suspension of running has yet taken place.

WOODHULL AND CLAFLIN.

An Indictment Found Against them—A Writ of Habeas Corpus for Col. Blood—Arrest of Stephen Pearl Andrews.

A very large crowd of persons assembled in the United States Circuit Court yesterday to listen to the examination into the charge of sending indecent publications through the Post-office, preferred against Victoria C. Woodhull and Tennie C. Claflin, publishers of Woodhull & Claflin's Weekly. The examination was conducted before Commissioner Osborne, and at 1 o'clock Mr. Howe, counsel for the defendants, expressed his readiness to proceed with the case.

Assistant District-Attorney Davies said that the Grand Jury had indicted the defendants, and that the case was practically out of the Commissioner's jurisdiction.

Mr. Howe said this was a proceeding instigated by the malice and revenge of certain persons in high station, who dare not come forward and face public opinion. Through their instrumentality only this indictment was proved. He maintained that the papers referred to were not obscene, and if they were so, that the Bible was chargeable with the same. Boccaccio and the Holy Bible, Byron's poems, and Shakespeare's plays. He characterized the prosecution as a blow at the freedom of the Press, and again denounced the secret power which prompted the prosecution.

Mr. Reynert, who was associated with Mr. Howe, said the defendants were actuated by higher impulses than those of earthly law, and they were ready to substantiate the allegations put forward in their paper.

The Commissioner said that the Grand Jury having indicted the defendants, and, without hearing on their guilt or innocence, dismissed the case.

The defendants were discharged but were immediately rearrested on a Bench warrant, and taken to the Ludlow-street Jail.

THE CASE OF COL. BLOOD.

Mr. Howe presented the usual formal petition to Judge Fancher in Supreme Court, Chambers, and asked for a writ of habeas corpus to bring up the body of Col. Blood, now detained in Ludlow-street Jail, on the charge of being implicated with the Claflin and Woodhull party in sending obscene matter through the United States mail. The Judge granted the writ, making it returnable to-morrow morning.

ARREST OF STEPHEN PEARL ANDREWS.

Yesterday morning a warrant was issued, by Justice Fowler, for the arrest of Stephen Pearl Andrews, on a charge of "complicity in the publication of the libel against Mr. L. C. Challis, in Woodhull & Claflin's Weekly." Officer Carman, of the Jefferson Market Police Court, was intrusted with the execution of the warrant, and after considerable difficulty ascertained that Mr. Pearl Andrews resided on the corner of Fifty-fourth-street and Sixth-avenue. Proceeding thither the officer found his man and brought him in custody to Jefferson Market Police Court, Mr. Andrews emphatically denies that he had anything whatever to do with the alleged libelous article, and states that he did not know of the existence of such a man as Mr. Challis until he was arrested. Mr. Andrews says that his connection with the Weekly ceased in the month of January last, since which time he has not written a line for its columns.

The examination was to have been held in the afternoon, but owing to the absence of Mr. Challis' witnesses, was postponed. Justice Fowler fixed the amount of bail at $2,500, and gave Mr. Andrews into the custody of Sergt. Williams, with instructions not to look him up, but to notify him (the Judge) if he secured sureties for his bail bond.

Authority of Mr. Bergh's Officers.

The Broadway and East-side Stage Company, the Fourth-avenue Railroad Company, and the Broadway and Twenty-third-street Railroad Company have commenced a suit in Equity against Mr. Henry Bergh, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, whereby they seek to restrain Mr. Bergh and his officers from making summary arrests of drivers of the City cars. The case was argued yesterday by ex-Recorder Smith before Judge Joseph F. Daly, in the Special Term of the Court of Common Pleas, where it was alleged on behalf of the Companies that, the act being merely a misdemeanor, Bergh's officers, or any officer, is without authority to make a summary arrest; that if an arrest is made, it must be on a warrant issued by a magistrate, based on a sworn complaint; that the arrest of the drivers was not only unlawful in form, but without just foundation in fact, in that if the misdemeanor was committed at all, it must have been done at the stable of the Company by the persons in charge who send out the horses.

Mr. Eldridge T. Gerry will continue the argument to-morrow on behalf of Bergh, to which time the further hearing is adjourned.

The Pilot Commissioners.

At a meeting of the Board of Commissioners of Pilots, held yesterday at their office, No. 75 South-street, in the City of New-York, the following report was read and ordered on file:

NEW-YORK, Nov. 4, 1872.

To the Board of Commissioners of Pilots.

GENTLEMEN: I respectfully report that on Monday, Oct. 28, Block Island bearing north, forty miles distant, the pilot-boat Pet, No. 9, it blowing a gale of wind east by north-east, fell in with the brig Emily, from Jacksonville, bound to Boston, in a sinking condition, colors flying union down; went to her and spoke her; the master wished to abandon the vessel as the sea was making a clean breach over her, and she could not float much longer. I, therefore, lay by her about one and a half or two hours, and succeeded in getting the crew and officers safely on board the Pet; sea was very heavy and her deck-load of pitch-pine timber was washing off and knocking around furiously all the time, rendering it difficult to use the boats safely; lay by the wreck till 7 P. M., 29th, when spoke steamer Italy, and on reporting to Capt. Thompson, he very kindly waited to receive the shipwrecked crew and brought them to New-York.

The pilot-boat then proceeded on her cruise.

JOSEPH HENDERSON, Captain of pilot-boat Pet.

On motion of Mr. Blunt, the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, The pilots attached to the New-York boat Pet, No. 9, rescued the crew of the brig Emily, at great personal risk, in a gale of wind from E. N. E., and heavy sea, (said vessel having sunk forty miles south of Block Island,) and safely transferred them to the steamer Italy, bound to New-York; and

Whereas, By section 22 of the Pilotage law, the Board is authorized to provide rewards for such acts on the part of the pilots.

Resolved, That the sum of $250 is hereby appropriated for the benefit of the persons who rescued the said crew, out of the funds applicable to that purpose.

Resolved, That the praiseworthy action of Capt. Thompson, of the steamer Italy, in steadining his ship to receive the shipwrecked crew, and giving them safe passage to New-York, deserves recognition and the hearty thanks of the community.

Marshall S. Bidwell

In Supreme Court, General Term, yesterday, Mr. William M. Evarts, Chairman of the Committee appointed on Saturday, at the meeting of the Bar in relation to the death of the late Marshall S. Bidwell, presented the resolutions of respect and condolence which had been adopted, and already published. Judge Ingraham, presiding, in accepting the resolutions on behalf of the Court, and directing that they be entered on the minutes, made a few appropriate remarks highly complimentary to the character and attainments of Mr. Bidwell. It was then ordered that the Court adjourn, out of respect to the memory of the eminent deceased.

FINE ARTS.

The Belmont Collection—Notices of the Principal Pictures—Death of an Artist.

A rumor was current during the Summer that Mr. August Belmont, the well-known financier, intended to dispose of the contents of his picture gallery, and retire to Europe. This rumor it appeared, unlike so many others, had some foundation in truth, as during the past week invitations were issued to very nearly all the connoisseurs, art patrons, artists, and literary men in town to inspect Mr. Belmont's collection at the Leavitt Art Rooms, in Broadway.

Mr. Belmont has always borne the reputation of possessing a cultured taste, so far at least as the fine arts are concerned, and when, not so very long ago, he opened his gallery to the public for a charitable purpose, some $2,000 worth of admission tickets were disposed of within a few hours. It may be, therefore, that some disappointment was felt when it was found that his entire collection of pictures, unquestionably the finest in this country, was not to be disposed of, but only a portion of them. There are seventy-nine works in the catalogue, comprising specimens by nearly all the great exponents of the modern French, German, and Flemish schools, with a few by artists such as Zamacois, that belong to no school, but combine the excellences of all.

The rush to see these pictures during last week has been very great, and it is perhaps to be regretted that a larger gallery could not have been obtained for them. They will, however, remain on exhibition until the 12th inst., when they will be disposed of without reserve at the Clinton Hall sales-rooms by Mr. Leavitt.

Taking these pictures in their numerical order, we have first to notice the "Storm near Capri," by Andreas Achenbach, a remarkably fine composition, truthful in color and drawing, and full of true feeling. "A Norway Landscape," by the same artist, is a comparatively commonplace work. Ansdell's "Highland Sheep," a large picture, is well studied, but conventional in treatment. Bérenger's "Baby's Bath," well known from engravings and chromos, is somewhat disappointing, the "baby" having the face and expression of a more mature age.

The "Return from Pasture," by Rosa Bonheur, requires a good light and some study before its real excellence appears. Its tone is so dark and the middle distance so obtrusive, that it is only after a careful analysis that its real merits are seen. The cattle are superbly painted, and the various expressions of the different animals, with their contented, full-fed, comfortable look, from the noble ox in the foreground to the old white horse in the rear, are rendered in a way that close study alone can enable the artist to attain. It is one of the chief merits of Rosa Bonheur's work that it has an out-of-door look about it, and that it breathes of the fields and woods. Her cattle have roamed in "breezy uplands, open to the sky."

The "show piece" of the collection is Bougereau's "Italian Mother and Child." The figures are life size, and represent a young, Madonna-like mother gazing down with loving look at the tiny, naked creature struggling in her arms. The little one, with laughing eyes and extended feet and hands, is cuddling an orange beneath one arm, while the other grasps at the mother's face. Bougereau has never painted, with but one exception, a finer composition than this. The flesh-tints are pure, as if laid on by Nature herself, the drawing is faultless, the expression charming, and the tone of the whole harmonious. It is, indeed, a tender and noble work, far surpassing many of this artist's later, more hastily-executed and more pretentious compositions.

Calame is represented by "Summer in the Alps," a strong picture, though not equal to some of his best efforts. De Keyser (of Antwerp) has a large work, in which old Faliero and his daughter are represented as having just been made aware of the sentence pronounced by Steno. It is rich in color, and tolerably good in expression, but falls far short of being an adequate representation of the scene. De Taye's "Emigrants" is striking as a composition, but its color is poor. The "Pillage of Rome," by Robert-Fleury, is one of those ambitious works, in which more is attempted than the artist has the ability to execute. The figures in the foreground, representing the seizure of a lady by the rude soldiery, and the murder of a Cardinal, with whose habiliments the invaders are decorating themselves, are well painted, but what is the meaning of the background? The Castle of St. Angelo and the city walls are apparently about ten feet distant, yet from the size of the figures on the walls they seem intended to represent men about half a mile off. After this scene we feel some relief in turning to one of Frére's studies from nature. It is entitled "A Drink of Water," and represents a peasant girl and the interior of an humble cottage. Though not by any means one of the artist's best works, it has a touch of nature in it that elevates it far above more pretentious compositions. Karl Girardet has two landscapes, one good and one poor; and next, the "Diogenes" by Gérome claims attention. It is a simple composition, simple, indeed, as it well could be—a tub, or rather, a large earthen jar, cracked and mended in many places, the figure of an almost nude, stern-faced man crouching therein, four wolf-like dogs, who sit around in silent and hungry contemplation, and a dead wall. Such are the elements of this great picture, for great it undoubtedly is. The artist has not thought fit to give us, in his principal figure, the calm, smooth-faced, venerable gentleman for whom we are accustomed to look, but a man in the prime of life, with dark, strong features, robust limbs, and an intensely-concentrated expression—a man who, were he less of a philosopher, might rule a senate or lead armies to victory. The drawing of the nude figure is admirable, and the expression of the four lean, hungry-looking dogs most forcibly rendered.

Knaus, whose studies of peasant life have immortalized his name, is adequately represented by "Pastor and Poacher." A tall, bare-legged, loosely put together, miserable-looking peasant, has been detected in the act of poaching, and an interview with his pastor has been the immediate result. The little, round, cherry-cheeked, well-fed man of God, standing in his comfortable parlor, with one hand at his back and the other raised to enforce the points of his discourse, is looking up to the tall, rugged-faced, poverty-stricken fellow before him, and is evidently laying down the law with all the oratorical power he is master of, while the culprit seems rather as if his thoughts were elsewhere, and the moral precepts he is obliged to listen to were not doing him much good. He looks, in fact, as if a comfortable suit of clothes and a good dinner would be more likely to arouse the good that may be in him than any ethical discourse whatever, and this, we take it, was the artist's meaning. There is a sermon in this picture for those who can read it.

Louis Meyer has a good "Shipwreck," with a finely-painted sky and liquid water, and Meyer von Bremen a charming work, in which two sweet-faced children are watching their sleeping brother. A better example of this artist it would, perhaps, be impossible to find. It is infinitely superior to his later works, though not so carefully finished. Merle is not very well represented—"The Christian Mother" is weak in color, and comparatively feeble in expression. Meissonier has a superbly-painted "Cavalier Awaiting an Audience." This is no lay figure, as Meissonier's compositions are sometimes apt to be, but a dashing, vigorous, life-like work. The cavalier stands in his scarlet cloak and high buff boots, warming his feet at the fire, his handsome face contracted into a frown, for he is cold, and, furthermore, is disgusted that a man of his consideration should have to wait any one's pleasure. We have but space to notice a noble head of a "Monk Reading," by Schwartze, which is positively startling in its reality; a capital example of the Flemish school by Jean Weissenbruch; a good "View in Venice," by Felix Ziem, bright and transparent as if painted beneath Italian skies, and "Preparations for the Bal Masque," by Zamacois. The last is conceived in that vein of satire which Zamacois loves to indulge, and which is apparent in nearly all his works, including his last and best—"The Education of a Prince." In the picture now on exhibition, two young men are adorning themselves at a costumer's, the brightly-colored garments hanging around. One, dressed as a clown, is seated comfortably in an arm-chair, and is convulsed with laughter at the efforts of his comrade to draw on a pair of boots several sizes too small for him.

There are other good works in the collection, to which we may be able to refer hereafter.

DEATH OF MR. JOSEPH AMES.

Mr. Joseph Ames, one of our best portrait painters, died at his residence in this City on the 30th ult. He was born at Roxbury, N. H., and was in the fifty-sixth year of his age when his life was terminated by paralysis of the brain. Mr. Ames has painted nearly all the prominent men of this country. His work was distinguished for its solidity and purity of color, and the grace and dignity he contrived to throw into nearly all the subjects he painted, without losing the likeness.

THE CONTROLLER AND THE FIREMEN.

The Question of Paying the Firemen—Official Communication from the Controller Yesterday.

The following letter from Controller Green was presented at the Head quarters of the Fire Department, yesterday, by Pay-master Falls, of the Department of Finance:

CITY OF NEW-YORK, DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE,
CONTROLLER'S OFFICE,
MONDAY MORNING, Nov. 4, 1872.

To the Fire Department.

Yours of the 2d inst. was received late on Saturday night. I do not find the time at present to reply to its various statements, some of which I think are not quite correct.

The facts are these: Some three months since it appeared to me on examination of the law that it did not authorise me to pay moneys over in bulk to the Fire Department, but that it was the duty of the Fire Department to send the pay-rolls of its employes to the Finance Department, to be there examined, and, if found correct, paid.

The Fire Department has, upon various pretexts, avoided the transmission of these rolls and other bills to the Finance Department.

On the 26th day of October last, five days before the pay-roll of the Fire Department would become due, I wrote the Fire Department a letter, from which the following is an extract:

"The Supreme Court having denied the application of the Fire Department to have moneys deposited in bulk to its credit, to be paid out by that Department without audit and examination of the Finance Department, you are hereby notified to transmit to this Department the pay-rolls of the firemen, clerks, and other employes of the Fire Department for the month of October, 1872, properly certified in form heretofore prescribed by this Department; and that I shall be prepared to pay the same on the 1st day of November, or as soon thereafter as they can be examined and audited by this Department. In order that no delay may occur to the firemen and other employes in receiving their pay, and to avoid any inconvenience to your Department or its operations, payment will be made either at this office, or at the office of the Fire Department, or to the various companies at their respective engine-houses, and at such hour or hours as may best subserve the convenience of the Fire Department."

Up to this time no rolls of the Fire Department for the month of October have been received.

I have no list of the names and residences of the men in your employ, and I, of course, cannot pay them unless I know who they are and where they are to be found, and what amount is due to them. I think it your duty to furnish this information to me.

The Fire Department applied to the Court for an order that the Controller pay over moneys in large sums to it, so that the Fire Department might distribute these moneys as it thought best, and without its rolls and bills passing under the review and examination of the Finance Department.

This order the Court refused.

It is now my duty to pay these rolls, after examining and finding them correct.

It is the duty of the Fire Department to furnish these rolls to me without delay, containing the name and residences of the men employed by your Department, with your statement, and certificate of the amount due to them respectively.

On these rolls I am ready to pay the firemen and other employes of the Fire Department today. I send this letter by the Pay-master of the Finance Department, who is prepared to commence the payment forthwith, in such mode, and at such place as will best facilitate the operations of the Fire Department.

If you desire any stipulation other than that already given to you, that the mode of payment proposed by the Finance Department and by the law shall not affect the proceedings now in Court, I give it to you now and here fully. Respectfully,

ANDREW H. GREEN, Controller.

Mr. Falls said he was ready on behalf of the Controller to pay the men if the pay-rolls would be procured. Gen. Shaler, who was present when he called, stated that no steps could be taken in the matter until the Board would meet on Thursday next, as already determined upon, but at the request of the Pay-master, who expressed the Controller's wish to pay the firemen as soon as possible, he directed the Secretary to call a meeting of the Fire Commissioners on Wednesday, when the subject will come before the Board.

An Actors' Strike and a Stabbing Affair in a Richmond Theatre.

From the Richmond (Va.) Enquirer, Nov. 4.

The even tenor with which the Academy of Music has been running this season was disturbed on Friday night by a succession of unpleasant and unfortunate circumstances. The members of the orchestra were not in their places until near 9 o'clock, and then they declared they would not strike a note until they had received some pecuniary consideration for past services. The manager was taken all aback by the announcement to this effect made to him, and having quite a full house awaiting with anxious expectancy the rising of the curtain, he was compelled to accede to the demands of the musicians, and went to the box-office, where he emptied the till of $14, and with that sum temporarily satisfied the strikers, and induced them to promise to discharge their duties. In having been noised behind the scenes that the orchestra men had been settled with, the actor who were likewise in arrears of pay, notified the manager that unless each of them received $10, on account, the performance could not proceed.

The manager being unable or unwilling to satisfy their demands, the audience was informed that the programme could not be executed that night, and they were invited to retire and get the price of admission returned to them. The ticket agent's funds having suffered depletion by the $14 paid to the orchestra, he lacked just that amount of reimbursing the crowd. A number of persons, when told that the money was out and they would have to call again, for what was due them, uttered threats and curses, and demonstrated by their angry and excited conduct that the joke was too deep for their appreciation. Finally, they all cleared out, and the actors also retired with bag and baggage.

Mr. Jones, the owner of the hall, at the same time took possession of it for rent due him, and closed the doors—leaving himself, E. A. Green, and Mr. Walton inside. After a little while two of the actors, named Hays and Cincinnatus, who had probably been drinking a little, knocked at the door and demanded admittance, saying, as is charged, that they would have money or blood. Jones' party refused to let them in, when the outsiders proceeded to break the baize door down, thus effecting an entrance. A mêlée ensued at the door and out in the entry, during which a number of blows from fists and sticks passed, and Hays was stabbed in the abdomen with a short dirk. Cincinnatus was also cut slightly on the breast and back, and Green received a heavy blow in the face from a stick or sling-shot.

The shouts for "police" called Detective Jack Wren to the spot. He found the wounded man standing on the opposite side of the street from the Academy of Music, and Green was on the other side without his coat. Upon being asked who had cut him, Hays said, "The man in his shirt-sleeves." Green was accordingly arrested, and both were carried to the First Station-house, where Dr. Jackson dressed Hays' wound. Green was brought before the Police Court yesterday morning for examination, and Judge W. W. Crump appeared as his counsel. Dr. Jackson testified that Hays' wound was a very dangerous one, and that at the present time it was impossible to tell certainly what would be the termination of the case. The examination was accordingly postponed until today, when an application for the bail of the accused will be made.

A Chinese Romance from California.

From the Trinity Journal, Oct. 19.

A young Chinawoman, generally pronounced the belle of Chinatown, committed suicide last Monday by taking opium. The young woman was lately brought to Weaverville by an old rascal, who is said to make the traffic in Chinese females his sole occupation, and finds it profitable. The unfortunate victim of his avarice would not submit to dishonor. She met with an honest miner from the Flowery Kingdom, by whom her tender affections were led captive, and who reciprocated her tenderness with ardor. It was necessary to their happiness that the hero of our tale should redeem his fair one from the clutches of the ogre who claimed her as his property. He toiled and hoarded until by hard labor and economy he got together $300 toward her ransom. But this was not half enough. The future of the loving and unfortunate pair was of inky blackness. But one feeble ray of hope was perceptible through the surrounding darkness. In the labyrinths of Chinatown there dwelt a terrible beast whose conquest would result in glory and wealth to the successful antagonist. Animated, doubtless, by the maxims that "fortune favors the brave," and "none but the brave deserve the fair," last Sunday night our hero attacked the tiger in his den, resolved to conquer if possible. The rest is briefly told. He lost all but his honor, and his Dulcinea drowned her woe in a cup of cold poison. She was buried by her master without display, and all her wearing apparel, perhaps $200 in value, was burned at her grave.

ITALY.

Matters in Rome—Cardinals' Visits—Proclamation of Currency—Utilization of Land—Movements of the Miss—The Weather and the Tiber.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ROME, Tuesday, Oct. 15, 1872.

Cardinal Bonnechose left Rome several days back, and the Pontiff has found such consolation from the visit as can be drawn from the sum of six hundred thousand francs which the Cardinal brought as a gift to the Church. Cardinal Cullen is still here. These visits have a political character only so far as conversations with the Pope, and reports of the state of feeling in the countries from which these agents come, can help to enlighten opinion and raise or depress hope in the Pontifical circle. French priests here assure me that confidence is as strong as ever among their confraternity in France of an intervention of that country, at the earliest convenient moment, for the restoration of Pius IX. to his rights as a temporal sovereign. We cannot shut our eyes to the fact, however fallacious or absurd the hope may seem to be, that such a hope or belief is almost universally indulged in the clerical world. In the opinion of the priests the result is to be brought about in the confusion of future European convulsions. But to most reflecting minds, that must be regarded as an evil day in which France, in opposition to the will of this nation, attempts, by direct intervention, to re-establish in Rome the Pope's temporal rule. The French have seen in their own capital city the sad fruits of popular violence at a moment when passions were excited by a national humiliation. We do not know whether there are men in Italy capable of similar extremes, but we tremble for the interests of art when we think of the possibility of new ruins added to the accumulations of centuries.

DEPRECIATION OF CURRENCY.

Some are now enjoying here the advantage, and others are subject to the disadvatage, of ten per cent. premium on gold exchange. The depreciation of the paper currency has not been so great since the time of the war of 1866. The circulation of the banks is constantly augmenting, and the smaller institutions of credit take advantage of the liberty of paper issues—which yet hardly knows any restraint—to increase the profits of their business. The National Bank is fast monopolizing the larger financial transactions of the State, and after the Sovereign, Bombrini, the Director of that institution, is the next greatest man in the Kingdom. The capital of the Bank is about to be raised from one hundred to two hundred millions of francs.

UTILIZATION OF LAND.

The sanification and utilization of the Agro Romano is still the subject of discussion in newspapers and in councils of State. A Commission has for some time had the matter in hand, and as a report has lately been made, it is to be hoped that some practical conclusions will be arrived at. The turning to account of the vast Maremma region, extending for one or two hundred miles along the shore of the Mediterranean, was made the subject of a special treatise, nearly a century and a half ago, by Sallustio Bandini, the political economist of Tuscany, and the matter has been written about a hundred times since. But these tens of thousands of acres of down lands are still an unproductive waste. Instead of offering inducements, such as giving the produce for ten years to cultivators, and thus throwing upon the lands a population of hundreds of thousands, the Government still piddles with its petty schemes. Did this territory belong to the Dutch or Swiss, they would soon find a way of rendering it healthy and productive, by opening roads, cutting canals for drainage, building habitations, and planting millions of trees. There are traces enough to prove that in the time of ancient Rome the Agro Romano was covered with towns and the villas of nobles, and the whole wide domain a productive garden. How much longer the Italians are to sit sucking their fingers and allow this great patrimony to run to waste, we must wait to see. Until the habit, common among Spanish and Italian populations, of going to sleep for one or two hours in the middle of the day, is broken up, we do not see any hope of that thorough reform in the industrial activity of the people so much to be desired. The northern races long ago learned that the day was made for labor and the night for repose, and that nothing is gained by dawdling away half the night in theatres and cafés, instead of in well-ordered houses. As for the Roman Campagna lands, it is now proposed to take them out of the hands of half dead-monks and other moribund proprietors, and give them to the people for use.

WORTHLESS NEWS.

Trustworthy information about some matters is sufficiently difficult to be obtained here in Rome. Half the reports about what they are doing, or going to do at the Vatican, are contradicted the day after they are published. One moment it is announced—and a wide publicity given to the statement—that the Italian Ministry is making extreme efforts for a reconciliation with the Papacy, and sending agents to the Pontifical palace with offers of money and privileges, and a little while after the statement is contradicted by the newspaper which made it. We were informed, a few days back, that Signor Gadda, the Prefect of Rome, paid a visit to Cardinal Antonelli with certificates for 3,200,000 francs, as a credit opened in the books of the public Treasurer, for that sum, as the amout which the Government, in its guarantees to the Church, had agreed annually to pay to the Pope. The paper containing the guarantees remains a dead letter, and it is now positively denied that any such new step has been taken, or overtures of any kind made. A journal, called the Gazzetta d'Italia, printed at Florence, of some pretension, and certainly not among the worst in Italy, gives a great deal of space to Roman affairs, and has several correspondents here. The report has been put afloat lately, that Cardinal Antonelli has fallen into disfavor with Pius IX., and that not long ago the Pope gave his Secretary of State a severe scolding, and made him to understand that he must keep his place. The reason of the falling out, according to the authorities, was the opposition of Antonelli to having any more of the Pope's speeches appear in print, on the ground that so much talking in the Vatican does not have, outside, a good effect. The Perseveranza, of Milan, conducted by the Deputy, and conspicuous politician, Bonghi, published the statement, and alleged its truth. A day or two after the Gazzetta d'Italia, in a letter from Rome, says:

"I believe myself authorized to deny the truth of a statement made in a journal of Milan, to the effect that His Eminence Cardinal Antonelli has fallen into disgrace with the Holy Father. It is not true that Antonelli is in disfavor with the Pope, for the simple reason that he has given no order to the clerical journals not to print the speeches of the Holy Father. The assertion is to be placed with those about the departure of the Pope from Rome."

In another column of the same newspaper the correspondent who writes from the Vatican uses this language:

"The Perseveranza was perfectly right when it stated that Antonelli had lost the good will of the Pope. It is some time since this misunderstanding began. It is more than six months since the Cardinal lost the favor of His Holiness, and if he has remained Secretary of State up to this time it is because all the Cardinals refuse to take upon themselves so heavy a charge at a moment like the present."

I give this example simply to show the looseness of newspaper writing here, and as a proof of the little dependence to be placed upon many reports put afloat.

KING VICTOR EMMANUEL.

The King is passing a few weeks in Naples and the neighborhood, to witness the evolutions of the fleet, now on that station, and to indulge his favorite pastime of hunting the bear and wild boar, the former of which animals are found in the wild, mountain regions of Isernia. He will come back to Rome before the opening of Parliament, which it is now thought will be set down for the 20th of next month. The Romans have the promise of the society of Prince Humbert and the Princess Margaretta during the whole of the coming Winter.

THE WEATHER AND THE TIBER.

We are having a few days of pouring Autumn rains, and already the waters of the Tiber are so much increased as to threaten an overflow. Every year, as Winter approaches, Rome is menaced with a cataclysm, and the disaster, in fact, is not of infrequent occurrence. The damage which always follows is great, and the nuisance caused by such great deposits of the slime of the river is extremely detrimental to health. It seems strange that long before this something has not been done to remedy so great an evil. But the authorities talk, and the people indulge their gossiping criticisms, and the river overflows, and days and weeks are given to the cleaning out of the filthy deposits. By raising an embankment for several miles along the course of the Tiber a remedy would

AN ENGLISH TRAGEDY.

Mysterious Suicide of a Husband and Wife.

From the London Daily Telegraph, Oct. 21.

One of those sad tragedies so frequently the termination of a course of sorrow or of crime in all large cities came to light on Saturday, under circumstances which make it probable that it may remain an unsolved mystery. On Thursday morning, an elderly man—a foreigner of respectable appearance, seemingly about sixty years of age, short and slight in person, with sallow complexion and wearing a mustache—applied to see some apartments which were to let at No. 18 Golden-square, in a house in the occupation of Mr. Cunningham. He was shown by Mrs. Cunningham two rooms on the second floor, one of which he took at once, but, speaking very good English, though with a foreign accent, he said that his wife was staying at a restaurant in Regent-street, that he would fetch her, and that if she liked the apartments, as he had no doubt she would, he would take them both. He then went away, and in about two hours and a half returned with the lady, who seemed about ten years younger than her husband. She also spoke a little English, but not so fluently as the gentleman. They gave Mrs. Cunningham to understand that they had just arrived from the Continent, that they would take both the rooms, but they would only require them for a week. They then fetched some boxes and took possession, going out to the restaurant, as they stated, for their meals. They were very quiet in their habits, so that it was hardly known whether or not they were in their apartments. On Friday they passed the time mostly in the rooms, except when they went out to their meals; and it was noticed by a jeweler who was engaged in a workshop behind that the gas was burning in the back room as late as 1 o'clock in the morning of Saturday. On Saturday morning Mrs. Cunningham, wishing to clean the rooms, sent up her little servant to see whether the occupants were at home, and she reported the doors fast. Just before 1 o'clock Mrs. Cunningham went up herself, being desirous of getting her work done, and knocked at the door. No reply was made, and she then perceived that the key of the back room was hanging on a nail outside, where it was usual for the tenants to place it when they went out. She at once opened the door, and, looking in, saw the lady sitting in an easy chair. She called out, "Madam, are you ill?" and, receiving no answer, was about to retire, when, with a vague suspicion that all was not right, she entered the room, and then saw the gentleman lying on his back on the floor with his head near the window. Thoroughly alarmed at the discovery, she ran upstairs to her husband, and told him that there was something wrong down-stairs, as the man was stretched on the floor by the window, and Madam was sitting in the easy chair with her head covered up. Mr. Cunningham at once went down to the room, and found the bodies in the position described by his wife, and to all appearance dead. The face of the lady was covered by a railway rug, which he just lifted to satisfy himself as to her condition, and then he came out, locked the door, and at once ran for the nearest medical man, Dr. Slight, of Brewer-street, and gave notice of what had taken place to the policeman at Vere-street Station. An assistant of Dr. Slight's was in attendance in a few minutes after the discovery, and found that death must have taken place some hours before. On the arrival of the Inspector of Police, a close search was made, and it was then found that each of the deceased persons had a Bible clasped in their hands closely to their chests, that they had been dressed with a white handkerchief, and the gentleman had a strap passing under the chin and fastened tightly on the top of the head, the object being apparently to prevent the jaws falling after death. A vial was found by the gentleman's side, and also a note, apparently in his handwriting, stating that they themselves were for their deaths, asking forgiveness for what they had done, and saying that they had poisoned themselves by strychnine. It stated that £5 would be found upon the table to bury them with, that it was to be done as quietly as possible; that £1 was to be given to Mrs. Cunningham for her kindness to them, and what remained in their trunks besides. The letter contained a Scripture quotation, not, however, relevant to the act which was in contemplation. Though £5 was mentioned in the note, which was without any signature, only £3 was found upon the table, much to the chagrin of Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, who are worthy, respectable people, and who, suffering annoyance from such an act having been committed in their house, seemed now to have the additional mortification of a shade of suspicion being cast on their honesty. On further search, however, £2 was found in the gentleman's pocket, and a purse containing 13s. in one of the boxes belonging to the lady. Nothing was found in their luggage to give any clue to their identification, and a quantity of paper ashes in the grate left no doubt that they must have carefully burned all letters and documents likely to give the information. The wearing-apparel is of foreign make, some quilted petticoats being apparently German; but, from their pronunciation, Mrs. Cunningham thought the deceased persons were French, and their appearance rather favors that supposition. Between the two rooms which they occupied there was a door of communication, which had been fastened up and papered over, and against it, in the back room, a turn-up bedstead. The gentleman desired that this means of communication should be restored, and he seems to have taken the initiative by moving the bedstead. Not being aware of the nature of this piece of furniture, which was draped by a curtain in front, he seems to have been much astonished at finding the turn-up portion fall out on him; and the lady, explaining the occurrence to Mrs. Cunningham on Friday, said, in her broken English, "I thought he was ill."

From the Erie (Penn.) Dispatch.

O'Brien's Menagerie has gone into Winter quarters at Girard, and among the pets belonging to that concern is a good-sized black bear, which was kept chained to the yard of the Wayne House. The house was built on a side hill, and to go to the bar-room from the road-way it is necessary to ascend a flight of steps set on the slope. A day or two ago there was a jolly party assembled in the bar-room, among whom were Col. Swan, Billy Edison, of North East, Capt. Wadsworth, and half a dozen more equally well-known denizens of the county. During a lull in talk about politics, Col. Swan went to look at the bear, going too close, as the bar-keeper thought, but Swan didn't heed the admonition, and the bear made a plunge at him with such effect that he broke the chain. He gained on Colonel at the liveliest time to the bar-room, distancing the bear at the first jump. Brum, finding himself at liberty, began to put on lordly airs, and trotted round the yard in search of some one to hug. The place was fenced with the exception of the stairway to the street, and a man with a pitchfork jumped on the steps to disperse Brum's savage mood, should he try it. The others got hold of clubs, pokers, hoes, and anything handy for weapons, and Wadsworth was so lucky as to secure a fish-spear. The magic "touch of elbows" inspired courage, and the men began to advance on the bear in platoons, Brum slowly retreating, as amazed as he didn't know so many he could hug first. In this state of indecision, he finally turned about and trotted into his kennel. "I've got him," shouted Jim Wadsworth, as he jumped to the front, and presented the five-pronged spear at the mouth of Brum's den. The echo hadn't died away before the spear was broken in two or three pieces, and the bear turned Wadsworth back somersault and rolled over him. The astonishment and scare were mutual, but the bear was up first, and he charged through the line, heedless of "belts" from clubs, and made for a rear fence. Here the unscientific construction of the fence got the better of him. At the corner where he mounted, the bottom of the post was close to a stone wall, but the top leaned to the eastward so as to leave an opening like the letter V, and in the bear's hurry he dropped his fat body into the gap, wedging it fast. His fore legs were dangling on the side where liberty awaited him, but his hind legs were still in the yard. Comprehending Brum's situation at a glance, Wadsworth grabbed hold of one of the hind legs and pulled as though he meant to tear the leg out. The bear tried to turn to bite this source of annoyance, but he could not reach far enough, and in his fury he tore big chunks out of the top fence-board with his teeth, and broke one tooth trying to bite the top of the post off. A dozen bed-cords, and as many trace-chains as could be found, were brought, and, after hitching to the hind legs of the ship-stores were got into the bear's mouth, and around his neck and legs, and when he was trussed up like a mummy, five or six men lifted him out. But he was not conquered; and of this he gave evidence when the party tried to remove some of the ropes, an operation that was necessary before he could be properly chained again. Finally some one sent for Adam Forepaugh, the lion-tamer, and he took the ropes off, put the chain on, and fastened the bear to his kennel.

A Quarter of a Century in Darkness.

From the Boston Transcript, Nov. 2.

About twenty-five years ago, Mr. Daniel A. Drum, of Portsmouth, N. H., graduated with honor at Dartmouth College, and was about to enter on the duties of a professorship tendered him, when a severe inflammation attacked his eyes, which has lasted to this day, and blasted his youthful hopes of a happy and useful life. For a long while he and his family battled with the disease, and the modern competence of his father was expended in vain efforts to restore this, his only son, to health and the world. But after several years spent in sea-voyages, and consulting the most eminent oculists in this and other lands—and when hope long deferred had made all their hearts sick—the poor sufferer sought what relief he could find in a darkened room, and there he has remained for more than twenty years; once in a while venturing to stroll out for a few moments in the moonlight, and still rarer to look at nature in the sunlight, and in either case paying a fearful penalty of increased anguish for the indulgence, as the most exquisite pain pierces his eyes on the least exposure to the light. So sensitive are these organs, indeed, that not only is he forced to keep his room darkened to a degree that can almost be felt by his visitors, but he must also wear thick bandages over his eyes all the while, and is constantly wetting these. When first taken Mr. Drum was a powerful and athletic man, but this enforced sedentary mode of life has worn upon him sadly, and he is now but a wreck of his former self. But through all he has maintained an astonishing degree of Christian resignation, equanimity and cheerfulness, such as should put to the blush many of us who complain much more loudly of trifles in comparison with his trials. He possesses much literary and poetic talent, and either by writing in the dark through wires, or by a closely shaded lamp, has written considerable for the Portsmouth Press since his immural; and several years ago published, in this city, a volume of poems, with an introduction by his fellow-townsman, B. P. Shillaber. Mr. Drum, since the death of his father, has boarded in the suburbs of Portsmouth, and is now living near Rye Beach.

Attempted Murder of a Policeman—A Daring Act.

A most outrageous attempt to assassinate Officer Gustavus Willow, of the Sixteenth Precinct Police, was made at an early hour yesterday morning, by some unknown person, who succeeded in making his escape. Officer Willow's post extends along the north side of West Fourteenth-street, from Seventh-avenue to the North River. At about 2 o'clock, while patrolling between Ninth and Tenth avenues, which is enshrouded in darkness, a man, pistol in hand, sprang out from the shadow of the building, and without saying a word, fired at the officer's heart. Instinctively, the policeman threw up his left arm to guard himself, and the bullet took effect in his left wrist, the ball passing through his arm and making its exit at his elbow, causing a very severe though not dangerous wound. The officer rapped for assistance, but before help arrived the would-be murderer had disappeared. The wounded officer was attended by Dr. Beach, and then taken to his home, No. 136 Seventh-avenue.

MONDAY NOV. 4—P. M.

The sales of Gold in the open market today were at 111¾@111¾@112½ ₱ cent. The excitement was on the Gold deliveries of the day, the like of which has not been witnessed, so far as the extraordinary rate of two ₱ cent. a day paid for the use of the Cash Gold is concerned, in the history of the Gold Room speculation. The same rate may have been paid, in times past, for inconsiderable sums on a sudden and unpremeditated emergency, but we do not recollect to have seen so deliberate a corner made at this rate by one clique of operators upon another for two or three million of dollars on sales made on the previous business day. The deliveries falling in today were chiefly on heavy sales made on Saturday on a declining market. It is supposed that these sales were made on "early information" as to the November Treasury sales, which information, so far as it pointed to larger regular sales than in October, $1,000,000 per week, was clearly at fault. The amount loaned or settled at 2 ₱ cent. difference is variously stated at $2,000,000 to $3,000,000, but part of this may have been adjusted early in the day at ¼@1 ₱ cent. The operation certainly paid well to the select party of Bankers and Brokers who planned and carried out the corner. At the close of the day ¼ ₱ cent. was contracted to be paid for the use of Gold on Wednesday to Thursday—after the Election Holiday of to-morrow.

Outside the above excitement the Wall-street markets,

We beg to give notice that the election returns will be exhibited by us at the corner of Twenty-third-street and Fifth-avenue, to-night. A special wire from this office has been laid to Twenty-third-street, and the returns will be displayed by means of the stereopticon—as on the night of the 8th of October.

No returns will be exhibited in this office. We are making an extensive enlargement of our premises, and cannot allow any persons within our publication office to-night. A great interruption of our business is occasioned by the concourse which usually fills our office on election nights, and we have studied the convenience of the public in arranging for the full and prompt display of returns up-town. There will be no admission to our publication office or editorial rooms this evening.

There has been much hard work done in this campaign by the Republican papers which have remained true to their party, and we hope they will get some atom of credit for it from the general public. Of Harper's Weekly, its proprietors and editors, and Mr. THOMAS NAST, we have repeatedly spoken. Their services have been inestimable. Harper's has been the only paper on our side in this City. The rest of the Press has been against us—and we were told that it would be too strong for us, but we never believed it. In the interior of the State, few papers have been more active, vigilant and persevering, than the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser, whose editor, Mr. MATTHEWS, always takes the side of truth and honesty in politics. He deserves the gratitude and respect of the people of his own city and the State, not only for his work during the past year, but also for his exertions during our protracted fight with Tammany. We felt much indebted to him then, and we owe him our cordial thanks now. We can hope for nothing better than that we shall be found fighting together on the same side for years to come. The Albany Evening Journal, the Troy Times, and many other journals, have also done good and effective service. We trust we shall be united in endeavoring to secure for the State and for the nation a thoroughly good and satisfactory administration of public affairs.

Hon. ALONZO B. CORNELL deserves something more than an election by a bare majority in the Eleventh Assembly District. It is very rare, of late years, that gentlemen of such high personal character and ripe experience in public affairs have been induced to become candidates for the Assembly, and the voters of his District owe it to themselves to give him a majority larger than they have ever given a Republican. The presence of Mr. CORNELL at Albany will, in itself, be a guarantee that the long-needed era of purification has at last dawned, and he should go there indorsed to the fullest extent by his constituency. Let every friend of a reformed public service vote for him.

"It is impossible," says the Tribune, speaking of GREELEY'S supporters, "that millions of private citizens should league together to support a cause which their hearts and brains do not approve." Of course it is, and that is precisely the reason why the millions of voters who were asked to support GREELEY and BROWN have declined to do it. Where are the millions who were counted on to vote for GREELEY and his GRATZ?

American citizens—of whatever nationality, of whatever religious faith, of whatever political convictions—can only be sure of the future by voting against the pretensions which have been put forward in behalf of FRANCIS KERNAN. Our only safety is in the complete separation of Church and State, and the friends of KERNAN having attempted to join the two in an unholy alliance, you should rebuke them with your votes.

We have made arrangements for early and trustworthy election returns from every State in the Union, to-night. In order that our friends may know the result at the earliest possible moment, we shall display our returns opposite the Fifth-avenue Hotel by the stereopticon process, the experiment having proved so successful last month. A special telegraph wire has been put up between this office and that of the Stereopticon Advertising Company, which will enable us to display the bulletins a few minutes after their receipt from our correspondents throughout the country. Dispatches will be received to-morrow night from every county in this State, giving the result. We have also made arrangements for securing an early canvass of the vote in this City. Owing to the changes and improvements in our publishing office, no returns will be displayed there.

Mr. O'BRIEN is giving the Greeley coalition a painful amount of trouble. The World insists that the Republicans have made a bargain with him by which he is to be elected Mayor, while the Tribune, asserting that the "Custom-house Ring" has betrayed him, does its best to gain his support by fawning on the man whom it lately called "a convict." It is a pity that the Professor and "the man MARBLE" cannot agree upon this matter. It is hard that they should both suffer from sleepless nights on account of Mr. O'BRIEN, when it is certain that one or the other is in the wrong as to the actual condition of that famous "bargain."

The Professor is at last fully aware that the libels which he so profusely manufactures are held in universal contempt. In publishing certain charges against an opponent, he yesterday took particular pains to induce somebody to believe them by crying out, "This is not a 'Tribune slander,' nor even an intimation of the Tribune's." Could a more bitter sarcasm on his conduct of the Tribune be devised? In order that charges against a Republican may gain credit, he is forced to assert that the Tribune has had no share in originating them!

Perhaps the most impudent thing the Tribune has yet done is its denunciations of the Committee of Seventy, because the latter opposes JAMES O'BRIEN'S present candidacy. The Committee, says the Tribune, did not oppose Mr. O'BRIEN when he was a candidate for the Senate a year ago; therefore, it has no right to oppose him now. "If they commend or denounce according to the exigencies of the canvass"—asks the Tribune—"what heed should be paid to their recommendations?" A few days ago Mr. O'BRIEN was called a "thief" and a "convict" by the very paper which now flatters him, and transparently intrigues for his election. And, in the face of these facts, it has the effrontery to charge the Committee with inconsistency!

The Greeley Press has hitherto assured the people of the United States that they are suffering beneath a military despotism, and are ruled by the bayonets of a brutal soldiery. This must be a mistake, for the Tribune now says that today, whenever a voter "proves tardy, the Postmaster of the neighborhood will go after him, take him by the neck, and bring him, nol. vol., to the polls." So, after all, we are not living under a military, but a Post-official despotism, and it is the brutal Postmaster, instead of the brutal soldier, who grinds us beneath his heel. It is satisfactory to know the exact state of the case.

Let Republicans take care that the name of Hon. ABRAHAM LENT is upon their Aldermanic ticket. He is one of the regular nominees of the party, and having done the City and State good service in the Board of Aldermen and State Senate in former years, is fitted by experience, as he is by character, to do excellent service now.

The World has the coolness to deny that the Greeley party is circulating tickets headed with a wood-cut of a cross, and calling on Catholics to vote for KERNAN. It even alleges that the "Radicals" have printed this scandalous ticket, and are secretly circulating it. One of these tickets is now before us, and contains the names of all the State and City candidates nominated by the Greeley party, and in addition to the wood-cut of the cross, presents the following appeal:

"ROMAN CATHOLICS TO THE FRONT.—The time has arrived when the sons of the true Church should manifest their love and devotion to her by performing their duty at the polls, which can now be done by voting for the candidates named below."

What conceivable motive could the "Radicals" have for thus soliciting votes in behalf of the candidates whom they oppose?

The Republican State Committee has secured the use of the Cooper Institute for this evening. The doors will be opened at 7 o'clock, and all who choose to attend will have the benefit of the latest election returns as soon as received. A series of short and pithy addresses will fill up some of the intervals between the declaration of the returns. Those not so occupied will be filled up with music from the instrumental bands that will be in attendance. Ladies are specially invited to be present on an occasion which cannot fail to be interesting, and is equally certain to be memorable.

Mr. HOOPER C. VAN VORST is the candidate of the Republicans, indorsed by the Committee of Seventy, for Justice of the Superior Court. He is a lawyer of ability and of pure reputation, and possesses the qualities peculiarly needed in the important position for which he is named. Do not be persuaded to omit him from your ballot.

"And yet, though there appears to be no loop hole of escape for this man, he should receive a fair and thorough trial. The idea that an example should be made of somebody is pernicious. No man should be sacrificed as a scapegoat for his class, but the whole class should be dealt with deliberately and sternly, and each individual treated according to his deserts."

The above is from the Evening Mail, and it refers to the murderer, SCANNELL. Why our contemporary should think it necessary to interpose a protest against SCANNELL or any other assassin being "sacrificed as a scapegoat," or "made an example of," is beyond our comprehension. Would it, in the first place, be making a scapegoat of SCANNELL to hang him? In the second place, is there any probability of his being brought to the gallows? Our contemporary innocently says that "there appears to be no loophole of escape" for SCANNELL. It seems to have watched the criminal annals of this City to very little purpose. SCANNELL is as safe as the editor of the Mail himself. When he is tried, a number of doctors will be brought up to swear that DONOGHUE died of the measles, complicated with the horse disease, and then other doctors will swear that SCANNELL is and always was insane, and then two or three women will be brought into Court and testify that in all the relations of life SCANNELL is a pink of propriety. The counsel for poor SCANNELL will take an onion into Court and squeeze out a few tears, the jury will bring in a verdict of "served him (DONOGHUE) right," and two years hence SCANNELL will be run by Tammany for Mayor. Let the poor man go at once. Why subject him even to the temporary inconvenience of a trial?

The Beginning of the End.

Louisiana has opened the Presidential election with a heavy majority for GRANT. Our dispatches, at the present writing, indicate thirty thousand, and we have seen the truth exceed our anticipations so much this year, that we cannot refuse to believe even this.

Louisiana has been claimed all along as "certain for GREELEY," even by the cautious Springfield Republican. The Greeleyites have relied mainly on the capacity of the Governor, WARMOTH, to commit fraud, and his well-known facilities for doing so under the Election laws of the State. But there are some facts too great to be concealed or perverted. The Tammany leaders were counted on in the same way last year to "count in" their candidates in this City. But their machinery broke down under the enormous burden imposed on it. They did not dare to falsify a vote so plain to everybody. Something of the same kind has happened in Louisiana. The State has gone so heavily for GRANT that it is impossible to cheat it out of its choice.

In addition to this, there has been very great vigilance on the part of the United States supervisors of election. The attempts at fraud became dangerous in their presence, and the certainty of punishment, with no hope of electing their candidate for the Presidency in any case, was very discouraging. Consequently, the election, which has gone heavily for the Republicans, may be conceded even by WARMOTH'S tools.

Our readers have thus, on election morning, a foretaste of the victory which, by to-morrow morning, they will hear of throughout the nation. We congratulate them on it. It shows that the coalition fraud is weakest where its friends had thought it strong; that real reform is far safer than the little knot of schemers supposed who believed WARMOTH carried Louisiana in his pocket, and could hand it over to GREELEY whenever wanted.

The Mayoralty.

There can be no question as to the duty of Republicans concerning the Mayoralty. WM. F. HAVEMEYER is the regular candidate of the party, nominated in good faith, as is fully attested by the card published yesterday morning, which is signed by Gov. E. D. MORGAN, and others. Mr. HAVEMEYER is, furthermore, the candidate of the Committee of Seventy, and he is pledged by something more than words to the great cause of Municipal reform. He is a citizen of the very highest character, of most honorable public record, and has all the qualities, as well as the experience, necessary to make an acceptable and safe Chief Magistrate of the City. Taking the circumstances of his nomination, his services, and his character into consideration, and every Republican, every sincere friend of Reform, is bound to vote for him. Failing to accomplish his defeat in any other way, the Greeley hordes have been persistently and malignantly asserting that he is not supported in good faith by the Republicans, and it is incumbent upon the latter to repel this slander upon them by not omitting to vote for WM. F. HAVEMEYER for Mayor. They will then have the satisfaction of having voted for the best, as well as the successful candidate. At a late hour yesterday afternoon a rumor was started and industriously circulated by his opponents that Mr. HAVEMEYER had withdrawn, but it will be seen from the letter which we publish this morning that it was entirely without foundation. Mr. HAVEMEYER has not withdrawn, and will not withdraw.

To Bankers and Brokers.

The course of the markets in and about Wall-street of late has shown plainly what the financial world thinks of the issues pending in today's election. Every straw that seemed to favor GREELEY has sent down all values. This shows what men who deal in money and securities think of the matter, and there is no doubt whatever that the great mass of such dealers, who desire the public prosperity, hope to see President GRANT re-elected. These gentlemen wield great personal influence. They are, as a rule, men of culture, versed in the arts of persuasion, and accustomed to call readily upon their energies. They have a holiday today. The Stock Exchange will be closed, and so will the banks. We, therefore, beg these important members of our business community to come forward in earnest, and put their shoulders to the wheel. Let them work with a will to bring about what they have shown us, by such unanswerable arguments, they so ardently desire. They are firmly of opinion, with us, that GRANT means an assured financial future; GREELEY uncertainty, and, in all probability, disaster. They augur, with us, that the re-election of GRANT will mark the beginning of a time of unparalleled prosperity; that the defeat of GRANT would involve the paralysis of trade for a long time, and probably commercial as well as political embarrassments of a grave and lasting character. Now, it is safe to say that the more decided the victory gained by Gen. GRANT today, the greater will be the measure of the prosperous results thus anticipated. The case, as we say, and have said elsewhere, is precisely analagous to the great battles of the war, and the resemblance extends to the principles contended for. We, therefore, strenuously urge our friends of the financial world to throw themselves into this contest with their fullest and most determined energy. They can do wonders if they will. Their extensive acquaintance, their knowledge of the world, the various facilities they may, when they like, command, give them means and privileges enjoyed by few. We trust this powerful class will leave no stone unturned to swell the triumph of the national cause. Both their purses and their patriotism are involved in the struggle. We know how freely they sacrificed the former to the latter during the war; we earnestly hope they will risk, for their parts, none of the fruits of that war by omitting the personal toil today which may be made so effectual.

The Last Stroke of Work.

Make one man vote our way today who you know did not mean to do so before. The battle of this 5th of November will be a memorable one. It is a fight for the Union, just as much as Vicksburg was, or as Five Forks. It is worth your while, it will be something to look back on with pride, to turn a foe into a friend this day, and so to swell the army of the Republic. Remember, it is not victory alone we want, but overwhelming victory. We want the Republican flag to fly so triumphantly to-morrow and thenceforward that no such dirty coalition as that which we now encounter shall ever again dare to raise its head against it. For a generation, at least, let the poison be stamped out. Honest difference of opinion is, of course, now and always, well enough. Better, indeed, in the interest of free government, to encourage rather than repress it. But an unpatriotic and purely selfish fusion of totally incompatible elements—a bond of fraud between men, who hate each other as they do death, to snatch the spoils of office—a union of life-long foes, who deliberately, on both sides, forsake their principles for the sake of power—such a combination deserves no mercy from honest men, either in print, in speech, or at the ballot-box. For the national credit, then, both at home and abroad, for the welfare of our business interests—so injuriously affected, as we have seen, by even the chance that a hypocritical, ignorant, and weathercock policy might succeed the cool, common-sense policy of the Government of President GRANT—we wish to see the triumph of today a thorough and splendid one. The more thorough and splendid it is, the greater will be the impetus instantly given to all branches of trade. Interest is ranged here on the side of political morality. Give the day, then, out and out, to the party that has saved the nation, to the leaders who have so nobly led that party. Some who read this can make, if they will, ten, aye twenty, converts before the closing of the polls this afternoon. Let each man, at all events, resolve to get one. Even at the eleventh hour, a Greeleyite may be got to see the error of his ways, to abandon the ranks of failure and disgrace, and join the column of victory and patriotism. Bring out one voter for GRANT and DIX, who "was not so before."

What New-Jersey Has to Do.

One of the most important elections that New-Jersey has ever had will be held today. Every citizen, native and foreign born, who wishes to uphold honest government, and to see a just administration of the laws, will go to the polls as early as possible and deposit his ballot. A victory for the Liberal-Democratic coalition means the victory of corruption and the rule of unprincipled men. In addition to the Presidential electors and Congressional Representatives, eight of the twenty-one members of the State Senate and sixty members of the Assembly have to be chosen. The Senators selected today will occupy their positions for a term of three years; and, at all hazards, the right men must be secured. There were thirty-six Republicans in the Lower House of the last Legislature. This year the number ought to be increased to forty-five. The race between the county officers will necessarily be a close one, but the Republicans can succeed, if they work with their old-time devotion.

JOEL PARKER'S election as Governor, instead of Mr. WALSH, in 1871, it must be remembered, was due to considerations which have no relation whatever to the present struggle. Thousands of American mechanics voted for him because he had been born in the State. They made the issue one of birth alone, and under such circumstances his defeat would have been impossible. No difficulty of this nature now exists, and we, therefore, expect that those who voted for a Democratic Governor in 1871, will cast their ballots today for GRANT and WILSON and the whole Republican State ticket. No voter who has labored with spirit during the campaign should relax his efforts until the close of the polls this evening. He must stir up his apathetic friends, and see to it that nothing short of severe illness shall prevent them from performing their duty as citizens. Men of New-Jersey, much is expected of you today. Give a good account of yourselves.

Today's Breakfast-Table.

There are thousands of ladies who can, if they will, bring strong influence to bear this morning in behalf of the good cause. That they ought to do so is as plain as that they can do so. All intelligent women know that the alliance against Gen. GRANT and the Republican Party is made up of two factions, who have always been not only diametrically opposed in political principles, but bitter personal foes. It is clear from this fact that, in the event of success, one side or the other would inevitably be betrayed; and equally clear that the alliance has been framed for a selfish end, and not for a patriotic one. All the elements that were combined against Gen. GRANT and the Union armies during the long, dark days of the rebellion are combined for the same purpose today. To help the Greeley-Copperhead faction now is to reverse what was fought for in the war—to confess that the blood of tens of thousands of Union soldiers was poured forth in vain. Surely, no woman who lost a husband, a father, a brother, or son, or even a friend, in the war, can wish such an admission to go forth to the world as this. Yet, near as we are to the war, conspicuous in the rebellion as were many who are now prominent Greeleyites, blatant as they are for a revival of the hopes and issues the sword of the Union was drawn to destroy, such would be inevitably the construction placed by the world on Gen. GRANT'S defeat. Of the latter there is no fear; but it is of immense value to the nation, in a moral as well as a material sense, that the Union victory today should be as crushing as it was at Appomattox. Now, every woman can influence some one; and some women can influence many. We ask all women who love their country to work for it today. Women may not have the vote yet, but they can, if they choose, control those who have. We have worked, and worked hard, in the cause of Reform and Honest Government, the cause which is yours as well as ours; will you not help us, this Fifth of November, by putting forth all your strength? Make every man you can sway—and there are few of us you cannot—promise you to vote for GRANT, and DIX, and HAVEMEYER before he leaves the house this morning. The triumph you help to win at breakfast you will rejoice over at supper; and the solid good you will help to compass for your country will be a theme for permanent congratulation hereafter.

The City Credit.

It is only fifteen months ago since a body of non-partisan citizens was invited to co-operate with certain Aldermen and Supervisors in investigating the state of the City accounts. The reason for that invitation was stated as follows: "The gross attacks of a partisan journal upon the credit of the City should be answered by a full report of a committee of citizens in whom the community have the greatest confidence, as the good name of our City, its prosperity, and every interest dear to its people, must suffer from libels so gross and attacks so false and exaggerated." What this investigation disclosed is a matter of history. It showed, among other things, that the so-called "libels" of the TIMES fell very far short of the actual truth, and that the real enemies of the public credit were those who had brought the City to the verge of bankruptcy by their stealings from the local treasury, and their issues of guarantees of City indebtedness to the amount of many millions, at rates far below their actual value.

The remnant of the men who plundered the City is on the side of ABRAHAM R. LAWRENCE for Mayor. So is the Banking Ring, headed by the BELMONTS and the PALMERS, who found the secret manipulation of City finances a very profitable occupation. Among the few indorsements which Mr. LAWRENCE has been able to obtain from the leading business men of the City, is that of AUGUST BELMONT. It was he who enjoyed the benefit of that little purchase of $15,000,000 of six per cent. gold bonds, payable in 1901, contracted for at 104½, and ten millions of which, issued before the advent to power of Controller GREEN, were simply credited to the City at par. In the first place, this fifteen millions of indebtedness would have brought in the open market at least eight and one-half per cent premium; and in the next, the commissions paid for the negotiation of the bonds to NATHANIEL SANDS, AUGUST BELMONT, and others, were entirely without warrant of law. Here, then, on ten millions of bonds issued before September, 1871, the City was cheated in one way or another out of $850,000. Then, in return for the five millions issued by Controller GREEN in fulfillment of the contract, the City will get at least two hundred thousand dollars less than, under the present system of open bids, it would have received. Here is a net loss to the tax-payers of $1,050,000 on a single transaction in bonds. This transaction, be it noted, was not set down as a swindle, except in so far as the venerable SANDS got his "rake" out of it. It is merely a sample of the kind of financial policy which the backers of ABRAHAM R. LAWRENCE would like to see restored. To the maintenance of the present honest system WM. F. HAVEMEYER, and those he represents, stand committed. A vote for HAVEMEYER means the maintenance of the City credit, and a gain to the public purse.

Count the Cost.

If any tax-payer is hesitating, at the last moment, regarding whom he should vote for as Mayor of New-York, let him take a fresh look at his tax-papers. The rate for the year is 2.90 per cent., made up pretty nearly as follows: A rate of 1.28 per cent. is levied to pay the State tax, and the interest on City and County debt—to cover, in fact, an expenditure of some fifteen millions of dollars, which no administration of City affairs can reduce unless by paying off the debt. Then there is a further rate of 1.47 per cent., producing about seventeen millions of dollars, which is devoted to the support of the City and County Governments. This element in our local expenditure can be very greatly reduced under a thoroughly organized Reform administration. There remain fifteen cents on the hundred dollars to make up the rate of the year. This will produce about a million and a half of dollars, which will go for the most part, into the pocket of Commodore VANDERBILT to help that impecunious individual to sink the Fourth-avenue track.

Here, then, is the alternative for the taxpayer: The Reform candidate for Mayor represents a system of administration under which the debt will not be suffered to increase, unless for the most necessary permanent works, and under which, therefore, 1.28 per cent. of the taxation—half of which is a penalty for the reign of TWEED—will remain pretty nearly a fixed quantity. The opponents of Mr. HAVEMEYER represent influences which will tend to a lavish increase of local indebtedness, and a consequent increase of the taxation levied to pay interest upon it. As to the expenses of administration, represented by half the taxes, we have the following testimony of WILLIAM A. BOOTH and his colleagues of the Investigating Committee:

"Your Committee do not hesitate to assert that there is not a railway or manufacturing company in the United States (and there are several such which could be named) whose annual receipts and disbursements nearly approximate those of the City and County of New-York, whose expenses for receiving and disbursing money, auditing, recording, and keeping accounts, including the services of officers, clerks, messengers, and others, amount to one-tenth of those incurred in the administration of our City Government for those purposes during the last two or three years."

Here is a clear indication of the possibility of an enormous saving in local expenditures. Part of it has been already accomplished, but much more remains to be done. Where economy and retrenchment have been exercised, it has been under the supervision of heads of departments favorable to the election of WM. F. HAVEMEYER as Mayor. The Departments controlled by the adherents of the Tammany candidate are still nests of sinecures, and the scene of wasteful, and in many cases corrupt expenditure of public money. A vote for HAVEMEYER means reduction of taxes.

A Terrible Sea Tragedy.

An English steamer left Boston a few weeks since for Liverpool, and on her arrival at the latter port one of the crew made a sworn statement, before the United States Consul at that place, which merits further investigation. It seems that at night, when but thirty-five miles out from Boston, the steamer—the John Stratter—ran down a schooner, and, according to the witness, without even stopping her engines went on her way. As it was intensely dark, no one on board the steamer could make out the name of the unfortunate vessel or the extent of her injuries, while the speedy manner in which they steamed away left them equally in doubt as to her subsequent fate. The damage to the steamer was limited to the crushing of a life-boat and the breaking of some of the light upper-work, but, as the hull was uninjured, the safety of the vessel was in no way endangered. There is in this brief account an evidence of heartless indifference carried to a degree which seems almost incredible. Indeed, if it were not a fact that collisions and desertions, very similar to this in many respects, have been recorded several times before in the annals of marine disasters, we might judge this to be the product of an over-excited imagination. The case of the Oneida going down, with the greater portion of her brave crew, while the Bombay sailed away in safety, is too painfully fresh in many minds to need being recalled in justification of this statement. We are, therefore, constrained to accept the account that has been furnished us as true; but we must confess an inability to explain or to understand the cause that prompted so inhuman an action.

The only reason we can think of is so thoroughly mercenary that we should hesitate to charge any one with it. In collisions between steamers and sailing-vessels, the former is almost always the aggressor, and, consequently, the awards of the Admiralty Courts, to cover the amount of losses, usually take the form of an assessment upon the owners of steamers. In an accident of this kind, the Captain of the steamer might reason that it would be better for him personally to save his employers a sum equal to the worth of the vessel and the cargo he has destroyed, by allowing her crew to sink quietly to the bottom, than it would be to rescue them; and thus have them appear in Court against him. It has been claimed by some, on the other hand, that a man who passes a few years at sea soon gets to place a low estimate on the value of human life. Instances of this indifference can be easily given. The almost wanton manner in which English and American steamers run down native junks on the Chinese seas and large rivers is a strong one, and the recklessness exhibited by the Captains of large ocean passenger steamers in racing with each other across the Atlantic, in months when icebergs are certain to be met with, is another equally forcible. But in none of these instances can we find any excuse for the conduct of the Captain of the John Stratter. The mere fact that he did not stop his engines, or attempt to make an inquiry, is as damning to him as if he had committed a deliberate murder. We doubt whether any laws exist that would punish a man sufficiently for an act of this kind; public sentiment is certainly very backward, as Capt. EYRE, of the Bombay, whose infamous action should have made him a social outlaw, has found to his joy. The present matter, as it now stands, appears to be in the hands of the Department of State, and we shall be disappointed if they do not take some steps to secure the conviction and punishment of the offenders.

Adulterated Food.

Adulteration of food is an evil so widespread, so tempting to its perpetrator, so difficult of detection by its victim, that most people have come to accept it nowadays as practically inevitable. We cannot all be analytical chemists, and perhaps on the whole, so far as the pleasures of eating or drinking are concerned, we may be thankful that we are not. A microscopical investigation of the purest water leaves it a very unpleasant draught for some time afterward, and if people only knew what abominable messes they are constantly putting down their throats under the most innocent disguises, the healthiest appetites might well revolt. The most comfortable way, perhaps, if pure food be an impossibility in civilization, is to imitate the children—to shut our eyes whenever we open our mouths, and make believe as far as we can that all tradesmen are scrupulously honest; that there is no such thing as turmeric in our mustard, or chicory in our coffee, or chalk in our milk; that our tea comes from China and not from Connecticut, and that the vineyards of Champagne are really as inexhaustible as they seem.

That is probably the easiest and most profitable course, pending the millennium. Abroad, however, they are trying another plan, which may serve the same purpose, and which it might be worth our while to essay here. Stringent laws have been passed against the adulteration of any article of food, providing that a first conviction of the offense shall be punished by a fine of fifty pounds, and a second by imprisonment for six months at hard labor. So much for the repressive part of the new enactment. Preventive measures are added in the appointment of a public analyst, whose duty it is to test at intervals the stock in trade of all purveyors of public food. This officer the inspectors of nuisances and of meat are instructed to aid, and the public are, moreover, warned to bring to his notice all suspected articles. His visits are presumably to be made at irregular intervals, and without previous warning, and the power thus given, in the hands of an energetic, honest, and capable officer, ought to result in great public benefit.

Why should we not have such an officer here? The occasion for his supervision is fully as great here as in any other country on the face of the globe. The injury inflicted by adulteration, the imperative obligation to check it, need no illustration. A public analyst in New-York, if he attended to his duties faithfully, might, it is no exaggeration to say, soon effect a perceptible decrease in our death-rates. Why not try the experiment?

THE SITUATION IN GEORGIA.

Greeleyites Confessing Participation in the Whipping of Negroes—Democrats Determined to Carry the State as in October—Negroes Resolved to Vote—Disturbance Apprehended.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 4.—The numerous arrests by the United States authorities of persons charged with violations of the Enforcement and Kuklux acts of Congress have produced a high state of excitement in the vicinity of Macon and in many of the south-western counties.

Prominent leaders of the Greeley Democracy confess to have aided in whipping negroes, but they justify their conduct before the local public opinion on the ground that all legislation by Congress giving the negro equality with his former master is unconstitutional and revolutionary.

Some of the younger and less experienced of the Democracy openly proclaim a purpose to carry their counties and districts at all hazards, just as they carried the late State election in October. On the other hand the negroes in some localities have become sullen and revengeful, and declare a purpose to assert their rights at the polls, let the consequences be what they may.

There is, therefore, all the elements of disorder. Nothing, it is apprehended, but the greatest caution and circumspection can prevent riots in these districts. A feeling of apprehension pervades the public mind, especially since the proposition by the Republican leaders for separate ballot-boxes has been rejected by the Democratic managers.

A Silly Rumor Contradicted—Mr. Havemeyer not Withdrawn.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

There is a rumor afloat that I have withdrawn my name from the present canvass. There is no truth in it, or shadow of foundation for such a rumor.

W. F. HAVEMEYER.

NEW-YORK, Monday, Nov. 4, 1872.

Very Mean.

Our City readers have noticed the big posters put up Sunday night on the walls of New-York, appealing to Irishmen to vote against the Grant electoral ticket, because it had the name of a negro (Mr. Fred. Douglass) on it. The contemptible tender of the Herald repeats the same appeal in a little meaner form as follows:

"How many white men in this City will vote to-morrow for Frederick A. Douglass, the Ethiopian champion of radicalism?"

If this would help to victory it might have been worth while. As defeat was sure, what was the use?

Depew and Vanderbilt.

People of this City, who have suffered in person or pocket from Commodore Vanderbilt's monopoly, will not forget that the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor—Chauncey M. Depew—is the Commodore's agent in the Albany lobby. The following letter has never been explained:

MY DEAR SIR: I saw Wm. H. Vanderbilt this morning, and in reply to my suggestion that we think it advisable to get the support of the Alvord wing, he said Chauncey ought to be able to secure that. So I think you had better see Mr. Depew immediately, and then determine the fitting moment to bring the matter before the Committee of the Whole. I understand that Mr. Depew is constantly in Albany during the sittings, and can be found at the Central Railroad office, and at Congress Hall. I hope that you will soon have something favorable to report, and if you think of anything further that I can do at the moment, please suggest, and oblige very truly yours, FRANKLIN ALLEN.

Does that resolution of inquiry into Pacific Mail amount to anything? I am interested in the stock.

Wednesday morning.

Hon. JOHN A. FOLEY.

THE MAYORALTY.

Mr. Havemeyer Not Withdrawn, as Reported.

A Trick of Tammany Exposed—Industrious Circulation of the Rumor that Mr. Havemeyer Had Withdrawn—Letter from the Nominee Denying It.

At a late hour yesterday afternoon the friends of Reform were startled by a report that Hon. Wm. F. Havemeyer, the regular Republican nominee for Mayor, had decided to withdraw from the field. This rumor was evidently the result of a preconcerted movement, as it was circulated in nearly every part of the City about the same hour, the aim being, evidently, to create an impression that the Reform candidate had abandoned the contest. So industriously was this statement circulated that it began to gain ground, until the friends of Mr. Havemeyer went to work and authoritatively contradicted it.

In order that our friends may know positively that Mr. Havemeyer is still a candidate, we print the following brief letter from himself, which should set the matter at rest:

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

There is a rumor afloat that I have withdrawn my name from the present canvass. There is no truth in it, or shadow of foundation for such a rumor. W. F. HAVEMEYER.

NEW-YORK, Monday, Nov. 4, 1872.

JAMES O'BRIEN.

Apollo Hall's Candidate on the Presidency—Mr. O'Brien Still in Favor of Gen. Grant.

As it was stated yesterday, in various quarters, that Mr. James O'Brien, the Apollo Hall candidate for the Mayoralty, had decided at the eleventh hour to abandon his support of Grant and Wilson, and would deal out Greeley and Brown tickets from his boxes, a TIMES reporter was sent to inquire of Mr. O'Brien himself as to the truth of the statement.

In response to the question, Mr. O'Brien stated distinctly that there was no truth in the report; that in his own district he guarantees a majority of 2,000 for Grant and Wilson; that though the Republicans cheated him, he is determined to do as promised; that there will, doubtless, in some cases be Greeley and Brown tickets voted by his friends in some other districts, but only in such cases as could not have been changed from the first, and in no larger numbers than has all along been calculated upon. The conditions, he declares, stand now just as they have done from the commencement, with a heavy vote for Grant instead of Greeley, and, so far as his own election is concerned, he is certain of from 20,000 to 25,000 majority.

Vindicate yourselves and your country from the aspersions of Greeleyism today, and be sure you do it before 4 o'clock P. M., as the polls close at that hour. This being a holiday by law, you can surely give the whole day to your duty as citizens.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

The Constituents of D. B. Mellish in Council—The Duties of the People Today.

There was an enthusiastic and numerously attended meeting of Republicans of the Ninth Congressional District held, last evening, at Lyric Hall, Sixth-avenue, at which Mr. Horace Russell presided. In his opening address, the Chairman said that the Presidential contest was already really decided, a fact which would enable voters to give more attention to local matters than would otherwise have been the case. He then briefly alluded to the character and standing of the principal local candidates, and urged the importance of electing to Congress, from the Ninth District, David B. Mellish. [Cheers.]

Spirited addresses were then delivered by George W. Bungay, of Brooklyn, and David B. Mellish. The latter, referring to the election today, said:

The elective franchise, which a generous Constitution has conferred upon every citizen, native or adopted, is a high and important power. It clothes each individual with an element of sovereignty. The expression of their sovereign will by the majority of the people is an expression of imperial power. And it is a truth important to be realized that with every conference of political power, there is imposed a correlative duty for the exercise of that political power according to the best light, conscientiously, for the benefit of the people. You are called upon to-morrow to exercise that power in the selection of the agencies of government that shall continue to control and guide the national destinies for a period of four years. The question addresses itself to every man with all the solemnity of these high obligations to-morrow. Shall it be to continue measures and principles approved by the early and recent experience of the people, or shall it be, without just cause, to hazard the welfare of the country by experiments for which our history exhibits no precedent? Acting in this public capacity of elector, the citizen should be guided by the same prudential views as when acting in his own affairs, and hold to that which is proved to be good, and until he is absolutely sure that it can be safely and certainly exchanged for a better. In the light of these views is it too much to say that the Administration of Gen. Grant and the principles of the Republican Party, as exhibited in Federal affairs, should receive the approval and support of the honest and enlightened? Is it too much to say that those who are opposed to the burdens of liberty, bounded and limited by law—those who hope in the process of mere change for the accident of improvement—those who hope to be benefited by a new deal in political patronage—those who seek to punish past supposed neglects by political opposition, will aggregate themselves and give their support to kindred leaders and candidates? The Democrat who would cast his vote for Greeley casts it for a life-long enemy. The former Republican who casts his vote for a present Democratic candidate, turns his back upon his own record and confesses that he has hitherto lacked the judgment to be right, and now seeks to correct it by joining the ranks of his enemies. Finally, appear at the polls early, discharge the duty of a citizen honestly, and if all shall be guided by this admonition the sun will rise on Wednesday morning and enable you to read the verdict of the people in favor of Grant, Wilson, and DIX, and the Republican Party. [Loud applause.]

Speeches were also made by Rev. Henry H. Garnet, Col. T. B. Thorpe, and others. The meeting then adjourned. The Idlewild Glee Club was present and sang several excellent campaign songs.

The Late Kentucky Kuklux Outrages—Gov. Leslie Issues a Proclamation Insisting Upon the Enforcement of Law.

Gov. Leslie, of Kentucky, has issued a proclamation relating to recent outrages in Shelby and Bath Counties. Several modes of procedure, he says, are open to him in the premises. He may call out the militia to suppress a riot or lawless combination too powerful for the local authorities, or may offer a reward. The first he opposes mainly because the Governor ought not to exercise such a power save in the most extreme circumstances, ample authority having been invested in the citizens themselves to suppress the disorders. Moreover, after the exercise of this power in a few cases, the people would look to the Governor as the main conserver of the peace. A reward cannot, he thinks, be well offered; first, because the criminals are unknown; and besides, it is better the community should be moved to secure their detection from a higher motive than mere money. He therefore concludes as follows:

"The whole secret of the great prevalence of crime and violence is that too many of the people have become blunted to a sense of their own duties, and officers elected by them, infected by the same indifference, are slow, if not wholly negligent, in the discharge of their functions. It, when such deeds occur as have lately shocked us by their violence and brutality, the 'hue and cry' were raised, and the young and old were to turn out in pursuit, gathering strength and numbers as they go, but few would venture to set at defiance the laws of God and man with impunity. As it is, however, a dozen men, perhaps the wisest in the community, under cover of darkness, and shielded from recognition by disguise, perpetrate almost any horror, and escape detection by the paralysis with which the violence of the deed or apprehension of similar visitation seems to benumb every one. It is to remedy this evil that I make this appeal, to rouse the better and thinking men of Kentucky to a sense of the unmanly attitude in which they stand forth before the world in tolerating a brutal act in their midst without bringing the perpetrators to the penalty of the law. I will never consent to the admission that Kentuckians have any sympathy with midnight assassins, be their victims whom they may; and in this confidence I call upon all good men, banding themselves together in every community, under the bond of law, to resolve, and see to it henceforth, that lawlessness of any kind shall not go unpunished; and I especially appeal to and invite all persons who may be in possession of any information which will tend to identify or convict the perpetrators of the lawless acts herein specially cited, to lodge the information with the nearest Magistrate or other officer of the law. And I do enjoin, and, as far as lies within the sphere of my power so to do, direct and command, all officers of the law to whom such information may come, to proceed to the execution of their duty by bringing the criminals to justice, under penalty of being impeached and otherwise proceeded against as the law directs."

THE LAST FRAUD.

The Political Assessment of the Police—The Circular Repudiated.

We published yesterday a circular which had been sent to the policemen in the First Assembly District, demanding money for the Greeley party. It now appears that several of the names appearing thereon were used without authority, and that one was that of a gentleman who is dead. The question now rises who got the money? Our reporters endeavored yesterday to obtain an answer to this question, without success. The following letters of denial have been received, and Mr. A. W. Leggat personally assures us that he knows nothing of the circular. After he called at the TIMES office a copy of a similar circular was received, in which Mr. Leggat appears as the Chairman instead of Henry Smith.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I notice in your issue of this date, an article headed "A High-handed Outrage," in which reference is made to a circular distributed to members of the Police Department of this City, for the purpose of extorting money for electioneering purposes.

That this document is a fraud is evident from the fact that the name of Samuel S. Wyckoff appears as on the Finance Committee.

Mr. Wyckoff, who was on the Grant electoral ticket in 1868, died on the 2d of April last.

As an associate and partner of his for the past twenty-five years, I can truly say that he never favored Mr. Greeley, and was always emphatically opposed to him, deeming him erratic and unreliable as a political leader. Respectfully,

GEORGE CLARK.

Surviving partner of the late firm of S. S. Wyckoff & Co., No. 104 Murray-street.

NO. 104 MURRAY-STREET, NEW-YORK, Monday, Nov. 4, 1872.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I was somewhat astonished this morning on reading your paper to see my name attached to a circular purporting to emanate from the First Assembly District Union Republican Association. The purpose of the circular is to assess policemen for the defrayal of political expenses. I never saw or heard of the matter until I saw it in your paper. I am a Republican, and have never wavered in my support of Gen. Grant, consequently would not lend my name to anything likely to assist the opposition party or candidate. I think that on investigation the circular will have been found to have been issued by some political dead-beats for the purpose of filling their own pockets.

Yours respectfully, JAMES F. HORAN.

NEW-YORK DISPATCH COMPOSING-ROOMS, NEW-YORK, Monday, Nov. 4, 1872.

Members of the Association who were shown copies of the circular stated that they were issued three years ago and had no doubt been used by "strikers."

AFFAIRS IN SPAIN.

Hostile Attitude of the Kingdom of Amadeus Toward America—Demands of the United States—The New Government and Cuba—Tidings from France.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Monday, Oct. 21, 1872.

I do not think it an exaggeration to say that at length Spain has thrown down the gauntlet to the United States. The new Government, the representatives of the revolution of 1868, have made a public declaration of their policy, and have refused to heed the just reclamations of our country. It has declared that nothing at all will be done nor any proposition entertained so long as a single Cuban remains in arms. The Cubans are to be killed in arms, or are to submit and be shot; and then Spain will govern her colony in the time-honored way which is so shocking to our sense of right and justice. A draft copy of Señor Ruiz Zorrillas's remarks in Saturday's session of the Cortes reached here by today's post, and I regret that I have not time to translate them for this mail. However, the telegraph will have informed you of the leading points in the Minister's declaration. Perhaps the caution with which Señor Zorrilla expresses his conviction that patriotism demands the extermination of all opponents, will lead our people to reflect a little upon what we owe to civilization and to humanity. Spain has clearly defied us, and has refused to grant the promised reforms.

AMERICA'S DEMANDS.

For a long time our Government has not ceased to ask a change of policy with regard to her American colonies, urging upon her that a more humane prosecution of the war and the abolition of slavery were things due not only to humanity, but to public opinion in the United States; and it has also asked, as concessions due to the feelings of our people, the reign of law in Cuba and the better treatment of our citizens and our flag. As Spain well knew, there was a moment when it would have been dangerous to refuse these just and reasonable demands. She promised to grant the abolition of slavery and the Cuban reforms, and then prevaricated. The replies given were intentionally false. Owing to internal troubles, our Government hesitated to push matters, and with great patience waited for the formation of a Liberal Ministry. This forbearance was, it seems, taken as a sign of weakness. The Zorrilla Ministry prevaricated also; it allowed new outrages to be committed with impunity; it promised to indemnify Mr. Peake for his illegal arrest; and it promised to get a decree to carry the reform laws into execution. But almost the first important act of the Ministry was to throw all of these promises overboard, and to declare flatly against any sort of reform in Cuba, and against the demands of the United States.

THE NEW GOVERNMENT AND CUBA.

This speech—this formal and official declaration by the most liberal Cabinet Spain has ever had—contains the sentiments of the new Government, and shows the deliberate purpose to exterminate the Cubans before considering, much less granting, any sort of reform, political, economical, or social. It is a declaration so full and so clear that it will show our Government the folly of trusting longer to Spanish promises, and leave no further room for the hope that the Cuban question can be solved, or for the pacification of the Island by diplomatic measures. What then remains to be done? Doubtless the President will act in accordance with the wishes of our people, and as our citizens are united in calling for the abolition of slavery in Cuba, I should not be surprised to hear that the next step would be the withdrawal or the recall of our Minister at Madrid. It is easy to foresee that the second will be indicated by the President in his Message to Congress, and I have no doubt that one sharp paragraph, at least, will be given to this subject. At any rate, the Cuban question must take large proportions during the coming year, for we now know the purposes of Spain and her feelings toward us in this matter.

ELECTIONS IN FRANCE.

In the midst of your exciting political contest at home, it is almost useless to write to you of elections in France, or, in fact, of almost anything else transpiring on this side of the Atlantic. But I shall occupy but little space. The elections of yesterday have gone strongly Radical. Cremieux, the old man who figured so prominently in the war, or out of the war, has been elected for Alger, and in the six other Departments the Radical candidates have been elected, if the present reports can be credited. But one must not judge from one point of view in announcing this fact. In the first place, the other parties had no chance at all, for they were prohibited from electioneering, and one private dinner of thirty persons was forbidden by order of the Government, through fear that it was an electioneering dodge. Owing to this state of affairs, the other parties refused to nominate candidates, and there were in the field only two independent candidates, while the rest were Republicans of the two different shades. The Red Republicans claim the victory all along the line, and at least two of the candidates of M. Thiers have been defeated. It is generally admitted that the Bonapartists are, next to the Radicals, the best satisfied with this result. They are forbidden electioneering of any sort, and are prosecuted for sending out electioneering addresses, but in the election of the Reds they see the moment approaching when Marshal MoMahon will be forced to use the army to uphold the Government, and to make an appeal to the people as a whole. The arbitrary measures taken against all but the two Republican parties, has reminded me a hundred times, I fancy, of that saying by Mr. Seward when in Paris: "Some years ago I was in France under a Republic which they called an Empire, now I am here under an Empire which they call a Republic."

THE FRENCH EXECUTIVE.

M. Thiers has gone back to Versailles, and is once more installed at the Prefecture—jealous, probably, of the noise Prince Napoleon was allowed to make, and fearing that it might give the Bonapartists too great a lift. Monsigneur the Count de Chambord has written a long letter to one of his faithful friends, on the true way of saving France. Of course the remedy is a dose of the Bourbon fleur-de-lis. Prince Napoleon has entered suit against the Government, or has instructed it to be done if possible. Of course the reply will be that no suits of the kind can be entertained. For several days we have been flooded with rain, and accounts from the South are alarming. The Rhone is swelling rapidly, and great fears are entertained of another inundation.

Lawsuit Between Railroad Companies.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 4.—The Union and Kansas Pacific Railroad Companies are before the District Court to day. The Kansas Pacific brings suit for $1,000,000 damages against the Union Pacific, for failure to comply with the provisions of an act of Congress providing that no discrimination shall be made by one road against the other, and also to oblige the Union Pacific to comply with said provisions. The attorneys for both Companies are here conducting the case, the Union Pacific pleading that this Court has no jurisdiction without their voluntary appearance.

A BIG VICTORY FOR THE NEW WILSON UNDERFEED SEWING-MACHINE.—It will delight all the many friends of the WILSON SEWING-MACHINE to know that in the stubborn contest for superiority in samples of work at the great Northern Ohio Fair, their favorite has carried off the two great premiums—the medal for best six specimens machine-work, and the diploma for best specimen braiding. As the great competition was in these two classes, it will be seen that the WILSON'S victory is complete. We knew this would be so. It could not be otherwise. There is no talking down the fact that the WILSON is the best family sewing-machine now manufactured, the one capable of doing the best work on any kind of goods, and under all circumstances. This award of the highest premium to the work of the WILSON SHUTTLE SEWING-MACHINE should and will silence the talk of that large class of sewing-machine men who have made this machine the object of their special enmity, simply because it is a moderate price machine, and undersells their expensive one. Go and see the first premium cards on those beautiful samples of work, and remember that you can buy this premium sewing-machine for fifty dollars.—From the Cleveland Daily Herald. Sales room at No. 707 Broadway, New-York, and in all other cities in the United States. The Company want agents in country towns.—Advertisement.

To The Voters of the City of New-York.

I am informed that a circular has been prepared by one of the rival candidates for Mayor, announcing that I have withdrawn from the contest.

I desire to say that there is no truth in the statement, and that I shall be a candidate until the closing of the polls, and confidently expect to be elected.

WILBOR'S COD LIVER OIL AND LIME.

Persons who have been taking Cod Liver Oil will be pleased to learn that Dr. WILBOR has succeeded, from directions of several professional gentlemen, in combining the pure oil and lime in such a manner that it is pleasant to the taste, and its effects in lung complaints are truly wonderful. Very many persons whose cases were pronounced hopeless and who had taken the clear oil for a long time without marked effect, have been entirely cured by using this preparation. Be sure and get the genuine. Manufactured only by A. B. WILBOR, Chemist, 168 Court-st., Boston. Sold by all druggists.

POLITICAL.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE SEVENTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT.

Look out for infamous and malicious anonymous pamphlets issued in the interest of Peter B. Sweeny's protégé, Thomas J. Creamer, libeling and misrepresenting the personal and business reputation of Hon. CONRAD GEIB, and in this connection read the following indorsement:

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE SEVENTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT.

At the ensuing election you will be called upon to select your Representative in Congress from this district, as between Hon. Conrad Geib and Hon. Thomas J. Creamer.

Mr. Geib, who was elected last Fall as member of Assembly from the Eighth Assembly District, secured, while in the Legislature, by his earnest efforts and untiring devotion in the interest of reform, the hearty approbation of every Reform organization in his district, and the warm commendation of the "Committee on Legislation" of the "Committee of Seventy." On the contrary, his antagonist, who will have the support of what is left of the corrupt combination which the citizens of this district so effectually rebuked at the ballot-box last Fall, has been thoroughly identified with the late firm of Tweed, Sweeny & Co., for his faithfulness to whom he was rewarded with the position which he now holds, as one of the Tax Commissioners of this County. We would, therefore, recommend for your suffrages the man who has proved himself a zealous, honest and intelligent legislator at Albany, believing that his record will prove creditable alike to himself and his constituency in any position to which you may elect him.

ON CITIZENS' AND COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY'S TICKET.

EIGHTEENTH ASSEMBLY DISTRICT.

26th to 40th-st.,
Madison-av. to the East River.

CITIZENS' AND COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY TICKET.

We, the undersigned citizens of the Eighteenth Assembly District, after a full investigation, believe that no one of the candidates nominated for the office of Assemblyman from our district by the Tammany Hall organization, the Apollo Hall organization, and the Republican organization, respectively, is fitted to assume the high duties and responsibilities which now, more than at any other time, devolve upon a member of the Legislature. We therefore recommend to our fellow-citizens long a resident of the district, a lawyer of high standing, and a man far above the possibility of corruption.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE SEVENTH ASSEMBLY DISTRICT:

Feeling a deep interest in the success of the reform movement in our City, and believing that you are in sympathy with this feeling, we take pleasure in recommending as in every way worthy of your support PROF. GEORGE W. CLARKE
For Member of Assembly, and Mr. THOMAS L. THORNELL for Assistant Alderman.

Both of these gentlemen have long been residents of the district, and are honest, upright, and capable men.

We feel sure that in electing such men to office, the people will honor themselves and greatly benefit the public service.

Both gentlemen have been indorsed by the "Committee of Seventy," and other reform organizations.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

As expected, business for the week opened without activity yesterday, Monday, Nov. 4, and nothing worthy of note occurred, politics being the absorbing topic of the hour. At the Exchange, neither of the legal sales expected to occur were consummated, that in charge of Joseph McGuire, of eight lots on One Hundred and Forty-eighth-street, near the King's Bridge Road, being announced as settled, while, in reference to the resale of house and lot on Twenty-second-street, near Fourth-avenue, by E. A. Lawrence, the auctioneer did not put in an appearance, and, although we learned an adjournment had been agreed upon, no date was publicly stated. Today being a legal holiday, no business will be transacted, and the Exchange will be closed.

AUCTION SALES.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT on Thursday, November fourteenth, (14th,) eighteen hundred and seventy-two, at 12 o'clock at noon of that day, at the Merchants' Exchange Sales-rooms, No. 111 Broadway, in the City of New-York, through Muller, Wilkins and Company as auctioneers, the undersigned, as pledgee of the property hereinafter described, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, twenty-five (25) bonds of the Portage Lake and Lake Superior Ship Canal Company, for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, with the unpaid coupons, which bonds were issued upon the security of a trust deed made by said Company, dated July first, (1st,) eighteen hundred and seventy, (1870,) to Charles L. Frost, purporting to cover the canal, lands, franchises and personal property in Michigan therein described and duly recorded, and also twenty-two (22) bonds of the Lake Superior Ship Canal, Railroad and Iron Company for the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, payable in gold, with coupons thereto attached, which last-mentioned bonds were issued upon the security of a mortgage purporting to cover the lands in Michigan therein described, such mortgage being made to the Union Trust Company as trustee, and duly recorded in Michigan, all of such bonds having been pledged with the Ocean National Bank by William L. Avery as collateral security for a loan of eighteen thousand eight hundred and fifty-two ($18,852) dollars made to him by said bank; and the undersigned, as pledgee, will also sell separately, at the same place and time, bonds of the Portage Lake and Lake Superior Ship Canal Company for the principal sum in all, of eight thousand ($8,000) dollars, with coupons attached, which were issued upon the security of a trust deed, purporting to create a first lien upon the lands, canal, franchises and personal property in Michigan therein described, which trust-deed has been duly recorded in Michigan; and also fifty-six (56) bonds of the Lake Superior Ship Canal, Railroad and Iron Company, for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) each, payable in gold, with coupons attached, which were issued on the security of said trust-deed to the Union Trust Company; the last two lots of bonds having been pledged with the Ocean National Bank by Perez J. Avery as collateral security for a loan of eighteen thousand ($18,000) dollars made to him by said bank; also six (6) bonds of the Lake Superior Ship Canal, Railroad and Iron Company, issued on the security of said Union Trust Company trust-deed for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, which were pledged with said bank by said P. J. Avery and others as collateral security for the indebtedness of said Avery and others to said bank. Also forty (4) bonds of the Delatur, Sullivan and Mattoon Railroad Company for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, which bonds were issued on the security of a mortgage upon the property of said Railroad Company, made to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, trustee; and also twenty-six (26) of the bonds of the Portage Lake and Lake Superior Ship Canal Company for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, with unpaid coupons attached, issued upon the security of said trust-deed to said Frost, which last two-mentioned lots of bonds were pledged to said bank as collateral security for a loan of twenty-two thousand ($22,000) dollars made to Alfred Wild by said Ocean Bank. Also seventeen (17) bonds of the Decatur, Sullivan and Mattoon Railroad Company for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, secured by the said Farmers' Loan and Trust Company mortgage. And also forty-eight (48) bonds of the Lake Superior Ship Canal Railroad and Iron Company for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) each, with unpaid coupons attached, secured by said Union Trust Company mortgage, which last two lots of bonds were pledged to said bank as collateral security for a loan of twenty-nine thousand four hundred and sixty dollars and ninety-nine cents, ($29,460 99,) made to Alfred Wild by said Ocean Bank. Also bonds of the Portage Lake and Lake Superior Ship Canal Company, for the principal amount, in all, of fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars, and unpaid coupons attached, issued upon the security of a trust deed, purporting to create a first lien upon the lands therein described, situate in Michigan; such mortgage being made to Martin & Davis, trustees, which last-mentioned fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars of bonds were pledged to said bank as collateral security for the repayment of loans made by said bank to Charles Callender, amounting to twenty thousand ($20,000) dollars. Also, ten (10) bonds of the Decatur, Sullivan and Mattoon Railroad Company for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, secured by said Farmers' Loan and Trust Company mortgage. Also, ten (10) bonds of the Lake Superior Ship Canal Railroad and Iron Company, with unpaid coupons attached, issued on the security of said Union Trust Company mortgage, which last two (2) lots of bonds were pledged to said bank by Alfred Wild as collateral security for the payment of his check on the Rhinebeck Bank for five thousand ($5,000) dollars and upward. Also, twenty-nine (29) bonds of the Decatur, Sullivan and Mattoon Railroad Company, for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, secured by said Farmers' Loan and Trust Company mortgage, and eleven (11) bonds of the Chicago and Illinois Southern Railroad Company for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, secured by a trust deed to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, which last two lots of bonds were pledged to said bank by Charles Callender as collateral security for the repayment of a loan upon his check on the Ocean Bank for twenty-five thousand ($25,000) dollars. Also, thirty (30) bonds of the Lake Superior Ship Canal, Railroad and Iron Company for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, with unpaid coupons attached, issued upon the security of said Union Trust Company trust-deed, which bonds were pledged to the said bank by Charles Callender, as collateral security for the repayment of a loan upon his check on the Ocean Bank for six thousand ($6,000) dollars. Also thirty (30) other such bonds as those last described, with unpaid coupons attached, which were pledged to said bank by the said Charles Callender as security for the payment to said bank of his check on the Shoe and Leather Bank for sixteen thousand ($16,000) dollars. Also twenty-five (25) other such bonds as are last above described, which were pledged to said Ocean Bank by the said Charles Callender as collateral security for the payment of his check on the Central National Bank for five thousand ($5,000) dollars; also forty-one (41) other such bonds as are last above described, and twenty-eight (28) bonds of the Chicago and Illinois Southern Railroad Company, for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, secured by said mortgage to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and two (2) bonds of the Decatur, Sullivan and Mattoon Railroad Company for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, secured by said trust deed to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, which last three mentioned lots of bonds were pledged to the said Ocean Bank by the said Charles Callender, as collateral security for the payment of his check on the Third National Bank for thirty-five thousand ($35,000) dollars; and also ten (10) bonds of the Decatur, Sullivan and Mattoon Railroad Company for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, secured by the said Farmers' Loan and Trust Company trust deed, and also twenty (20) bonds of the Chicago and Illinois Southern Railroad Company for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, secured by said Farmers' Loan and Trust Company trust deed; and also ten (10) bonds of the Lake Superior Ship Canal, Railroad and Iron Company for the principal sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each, with unpaid coupons secured by said Union Trust Company trust deed, which last-mentioned three lots of bonds were pledged to said Ocean National Bank, by Charles Callender, as collateral security for the payment of his check on the Union-square National Bank for twenty thousand ($20,000) dollars.

THEODORE M. DAVIS,
Receiver of the Ocean National Bank of the City of New-York, No. 19 Nassau-street.

COMMISSIONERS SALE OF THE JUNCTION RAILROAD.—Notice is hereby given, that pursuant to a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Indiana, rendered on the 23d day of May, 1872, in a certain cause in Chancery, wherein Joseph C. Butler and Charles B. Foote, Trustees, were complainants, and the Junction Railroad Company, Morris K. Jesup and Charles Lanier, Trustees, and others were defendants; and also pursuant to a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the southern District of Ohio, rendered on the 4th day of June, 1872, in a certain cause in Chancery wherein the said Morris K. Jesup and Charles Lanier, Trustees, were complainants, and the said Junction Railroad Company, and the said Joseph C. Butler and Charles B. Foote, Trustees, and others were defendants, the undersigned Receiver in the causes and Commissioner to make sale as designated in both said decrees, will on TUESDAY, the 26th day of November, 1872, at 12 o'clock noon, at the door of the Court-house of said Circuit Court of the United States in the City of Indianapolis in the State of Indiana, offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, ($50,000 of which will be paid at the time of sale, and the balance on delivery of possession, and within thirty days from sale,) all the following property and franchises, viz.: the Railroad of the said Junction Railroad Company now built from the said City of Indianapolis, through the counties of Marion, Hancock, Shelby, Rush, Fayette and Union, in the State of Indiana, and through the County of Butler in the State of Ohio to the City of Hamilton, in said County and State, together with all the franchises of said Company, its right of way, road-bed, track, switches, depots, water stations, cars, locomotives, machinery, fixtures and property of every kind whatsoever owned by said Company, excepting, however, one and one-half acres of ground situate near the Eastern boundary of said City of Indianapolis, claimed by Jonathan M. Ridenour, and which is specifically described in said first named decree, and thereby for the present exempted from sale. The property and franchises aforesaid will be sold as an entirety, as will that portion thereof situate within the State of Ohio, as that situate within the State of Indiana, the said two decrees, which are concurrent and co-operative, so ordering and decreeing.
WILLIAM D. GROSWOLD,
Receiver and Commissioner to sell.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT on THURSDAY, Nov. 7, 1872, at 12 o'clock at noon, at the Merchant's Exchange Sales-room, No. 111 Broadway, in the City of New-York, the undersigned, as pledgee of the property hereinafter described, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, (through Muller, Wilkins & Co., Auctioneers,) seventy of the bonds of the Portage Lake and Lake Superior Ship Canal Company, for the principal sum of one thousand dollars each, with the unpaid coupons, which bonds were issued upon the security of a trust deed, purporting to cover the lands, canal, franchises and personal property in Michigan therein described, and bearing date July 1, 1870, made by said Company to Charles L. Frost, Trustee, duly recorded. And the undersigned, as pledgee, will also sell, separately, at the same time and place, and by the same auctioneers, to the highest bidder, for cash, one hundred and forty other such bonds, for the principal sum of one thousand dollars each, with the unpaid coupons, which one hundred and forty bonds were issued on the security of the same trust deed. Any further information may be had upon application to the undersigned, at his office, No. 19 Nassau-street, New-York City.—Dated Oct. 19, 1872. THEODORE M. DAVIS, Receiver, Ocean National Bank.

NIGHT BEFORE ELECTION

Marked Activity at the Various Head-Quarters Last Night.

The Race for Local Offices—Holders of Naturalization Papers of 1868 to be Challenged—Breaking Up of the Greeleyite Head-Quarters—Hints to Voters.

Voters were eagerly searching, last night, for the tickets which they intend to vote at the polls today. Politicians were as busy at the various Assembly District Head-quarters as bees in a hive. Ballots were being folded, and all the artful dodges and tricks to be practiced at the election were being perfected at the Greeley Head-quarters.

All interest in the national election seems to have faded, as all parties agree that Grant and Wilson will be surely elected. Only on the local contest was there any excitement shown. Among those who have the true interests of the City at heart, and who are desirous of placing the Municipal Government firmly under the control of the Reformers, there is a strong and abiding faith that Havemeyer will win the race. The friends of O'Brien are equally sure of victory, and Tammany Hall professes to be confident that Lawrence will distance his competitors.

GOOD MEN FOR THE ASSEMBLY.

In the intense interest felt over the Mayoralty question there is danger that proper attention will not be paid to the election of proper representatives to the Assembly from this County. It is imperative, therefore, that voters should not neglect this branch of the ticket.

THE REPUBLICAN COMMITTEES.

The Republican National Committee's, State Committee's, and County Committee's headquarters were visited by large numbers of voters yesterday in search of ballots or to verify those which they had received through the mails. All who came were very desirous of securing the straight Republican nominations, and appeared to be alive to the possibility of their being defrauded if not cautious. Assistant Secretary Wright is now solely in charge of the National Committee Head-quarters until Wednesday next when the Committee's business will be concluded for the campaign. Hon. Wm. E. Chandler, Chief Secretary, is at present in New-Hampshire, his own State, where he will use his personal influence to make sure of victory. Assistant Secretary Samuel R. Curriden has gone to his home in Pennsylvania to work for the cause there. Secretary Henry A. Glidden is working in the interior of this State, while ex-Gov. E. D. Morgan and Hon. E. D. Webster remain here to attend to Republican interests in the County. Chairman Alonzo Cornell and Secretaries Knapp and Lawrence were in charge yesterday at the State Committee rooms, Fifth-avenue Hotel, and furnished every facility to voters in search of information. Returns of the election will be announced at both of these head-quarters to-night. The TIMES bulletins will be displayed by the stereopticon process opposite the Fifth-avenue Hotel.

THE GREELEY HEAD QUARTERS.

A happier man than the proprietor of the Glenham Hotel, Fifth-avenue, could scarcely be found yesterday in the City. He is so glad that the Greeleyites are soon to vacate his premises. He is a Republican, and has long repented his action in renting his parlors to the Liberal Republican National Committee. Several times the Committee was behind hand in the rent, and only the most pathetic appeals prevented him from adopting summary measures. Many of his best guests, who were Republicans, left the house in disgust, but have returned recently, impelled by a malicious desire to be "in at the death." An inventory of the furniture was taken a few days ago, and its amount estimated. It will be charged in the bill. The hotel-keeper has suffered much from the loss of debts incurred by the Greeley hangers on to the Head-quarters, and has come to the conclusion that his Greeley tenants, with few exceptions, were a "rum lot."

Yesterday the Head-quarters force were busily employed in packing up and dividing the spoils in the shape of campaign pictures, inkbottles, and stationery, so that in the evening the Head-quarters presented a stripped and very bare appearance. Ethan Allen judiciously kept out of the way all day, and T. C. Evarts, acting Secretary, in the place of Jasper W. Johnson, received visitors. Profound indignation was expressed over the "full confession" of the late Secretary in yesterday's TIMES, and that frank gentleman would have been in some peril had he presented himself. Mr. Evarts agreed that the Greeley cause looked "shaky," but hoped that the "Democrats would do something." "Yes," said a gentleman present, "if the Copperheads will only come out and vote for Greeley the result may be altered." A letter from W. N. Saunders, in North Carolina, stated that that State might be carried if the Democrats would vote the ticket, but they were unreliable.

At the Democratic Committee rooms, Augustus Schell, in company with Secretary Gallagher and another gentleman, sat in a despondent mood. Mr. Schell was busily occupied in reading the TIMES, containing the "full confession" of the Liberal Secretary, and the "bottom out" article on Greeley finances. Considerable activity was manifested at Apollo Hall and John Cochrane's machine at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

INSTRUCTIONS TO SUPERVISORS AND OTHERS.

The final preparations for the election today were busily proceeding at the various political centres, last evening, and in many of the Assembly District head-quarters the work went on till the small hours of morning. A circular of instructions to inspectors, poll-clerks, and supervisors has been issued by Commissioner Davenport. In this he says:

There are six ballots to be received, indorsed as follows: "President. Number One," having on it the names of the Presidential Electors "General. Number Two," having on it the State ticket, including the Congressmen at large, the Judges, the District Attorney and Coroner. "Congress, Number Three," having on it the Congressmen from the district. "Assembly, Number Five," having on it the Assemblymen. "City, Number Six," having on it the fifteen Aldermen and the Assistant Aldermen of the district in which the ballot is cast. The other ballot is on the Constitutional Amendment as to the Court of Appeals. Another Constitutional Amendment relating to the Canal Fund is pending, but it is supposed it will not be voted upon.

The naturalization papers dated in New-York in 1868 are so generally fraudulent, that all persons who registered on such papers will be challenged. When challenged they will be asked when they came to this country, whether they ever took out their first papers—and if so, when and where. In all cases where the Inspector is satisfied that such papers are illegal, he will retain them, and order the arrest of the offender. Persons who have lived four months in the County, and one year in the State, may vote for such officers as are to be chosen from the district in which they have lived thirty days, and may thus have a right to vote for candidates for some, but not for all local offices.

Supervisors are instructed to challenge all persons whom they think have no right to vote, including all such whom they have noted in their books as returned to the Chief Supervisor as questionable, unless a note to the contrary has been made by him. They will also challenge all other persons whose names have been marked for that purpose by the Chief Supervisor, and shall appear on the challenge-slips furnished by him.

Certain persons will be marked on the Supervisors' book or on slips for arrest. In such cases warrants will be placed in the Supervisors' hands, and on the person presenting himself, they will call a Deputy Marshal, give him the warrant, and direct him to make the arrest before the person votes.

Supervisors are specially instructed to challenge every person who registered on naturalization papers of 1868.

The ballots will be counted in the following order, and no box can be opened until the count of the preceding box is fully completed: First, President; second, Governor or State; third, Congress; fourth, Assembly; fifth, City or Aldermen; sixth, Constitutional Amendment.

CIRCULAR FROM GEN. SHARPE.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE, }
NEW-YORK, NOV. 4, 1872. }

To the Chief Deputy Marshals:

Instruct your Deputies to bring any person arrested to you. Inquire calmly into the case, and if it be trivial, let the prisoner depart on his personal application, taking his name and residence, and the names and residences of the witnesses. Exercise a liberal discretion in all cases where a reasonable explanation is offered by a person arrested. If you think the prisoner should be held, send him, with the witnesses, to the nearest United States Commissioner. United States Commissioner John A. Osborne will be at north-west corner of Forty-ninth-street and Third-avenue. United States Commissioner J. A. Shields will be at No. 13 University-place. Two United States Commissioners will be at these head-quarters, No. 41 Chambers-street. If any of your own Deputies are intoxicated or disorderly, arrest and send them immediately to these head-quarters.

GEO. H. SHARPE, United States Marshal.

ACTION OF COMMISSIONER VAN NORT.

Commissioner Van Nort yesterday issued a circular to the heads of bureaux in his Department, informing them that the clerks will not be required to work today, except to perform the absolutely necessary labor of the office. Mr. Van Nort was engaged all day Saturday in a personal inspection of all the work on the boulevards, &c. He authorized an emphatic denial of the story, which is being circulated by the friends of Mr. O'Brien, that those in the employ of the Department of Public Works are expected to vote for him.

THE COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY.

The rooms of the Committee of Seventy, in the Everett House, last evening, were crowded by citizens seeking tickets, and the Captains of the various districts, who came to receive final instructions. On behalf of the Committee, Mr. Roosevelt instructed the Captains to act impartially, and to use every means of preventing impositions on voters. The Committee has distributed nearly 4,000 000 tickets, including National, State and Municipal—of which 40,000 Municipal and 125,000 State have been given out at the Committee Rooms to citizens and officers of campaign clubs.

Mr. Roovell, who has charge of the arrangements, stated that the Republicans Clubs and citizens who had applied for tickets were unanimous on Havemeyer for the Mayoralty. The Committee held a meeting during the day, yesterday, and completed all arrangements for running their boxes and distributing tickets.

TAMMANY HALL CHALLENGERS.

A large number of challengers have been appointed by Tammany Hall, under the provisions of the new Election law, and special instructions have been issued to the persons so chosen to keep a close watch upon their Apollo Hall opponents. James O'Brien has a well-disciplined troop laboring in his behalf in every ward. During the present campaign he has visited every Assembly District, and personally superintended the formation of clubs to work for his cause. It is also reported that large sums of money have been distributed in his name among the laboring man in the up-town districts.

SUSPENSION OF BUSINESS.

There will be an almost total suspension of business down-town today. The banks, exchanges, and many of the business houses will be closed. The Custom-house will be opened only for the entrance and clearance of vessels from 9 A. M. until 10 A. M. The following firms, in different portions of the City, have signified their intention of doing no business today: L. M. Bates & Co., Eldridge, Dunham & Co., David Valentine & Co., Diggs, Cunningham & Co., Tefft, Griswold & Kellogg, Hazen, Whitney & Co., Buckley, Welling & Co., Oberholser & Keeler, Curran, Perry & Co., William Knisely & Co., J. M. Wentz & Co., Benedict, Hall & Co., W. A. Ransom & Co., Mabie, Murray & Morgan, Powers, Gaston & Co.

It is to be hoped that other houses will follow the example.

OTHER PREPARATIONS.

The members of the Sixth Assembly District Republican Association met last evening at No. 144 Delancey-street, and made preparations to guard the boxes today.

At the head-quarters of the Seventh Assembly District, No. 12 University-place, Col. B. T. Morgan presided, and the evening was devoted to swearing in marshals and giving instructions for today.

A meeting of the Fifteenth Assembly District Republican Association was held last night at Lincoln Hall, Thirty-third-street and Eighth-avenue, Mr. Henry D. Lapaugh in the chair. Addresses were delivered by Capt. Chas. J. Farley, Republican candidate for Assembly from the Fifteenth Assembly District, and others. Capt. Martin L. Rouse was appointed to take charge of the boxes, tickets, and men in the district. Other business was transacted in connection with the election today.

The German Grant and Wilson Campaign Club, for the Eighth Assembly District, at the Tenth Ward Hotel, last night, distributed tickets, and made assignments for the election today.

The Stanton-street German Grant and Wilson Club, Eighth Assembly District, Jacob Mohrstadt presiding, held a meeting, last night, indorsing the entire Republican ticket—National, State and City and County—but substituting on the Aldermanic ticket the name of Wm. Radde for Oswald Ottendorfer. Tickets were distributed, and the assignments for today completed.

The sum of $4,312 has been raised among the French residents of this City toward a fund in aid of the Alsacian and Lorraine immigrants landing at this port. A committee, of which M. D'Ouville is the treasurer, has been appointed to raise further subscriptions for the same purpose. The funds raised will be placed at the disposal of the Société Alsacienne-Lorraine, which has been formed for the protection of Alsacian and Lorraine immigrants.

IN BROOKLYN.

Yesterday was very quiet in Brooklyn, except at the different political head-quarters. Some little excitement was created in the streets, however, by the appearance of a number of wagons bearing the names of Bell and Kinkel, the candidates of the Committee of One Hundred for Commissioners of Charities. Preparations for the election progressed, during the day, without exciting much attention. The result of the canvass will be telegraphed to the Police Central Office, to-night, as soon as received from the several station-houses, for the information of citizens residing in the vicinity. Ample provision has been made for the prompt suppression of any disturbance that may occur at the polls, or elsewhere, though a peaceable election is anticipated.

The Seventh Ward Republican Association held a meeting last night, at their head quarters, and made arrangements to bring out the full Republican vote of the ward today. To this end nine men were appointed—one man from each election district in the ward—to distribute tickets, visit the houses, and see that no Republican who is entitled to a vote fails to go and do his duty at the polls.

The Fourteenth Ward Republicans held a largely-attended meeting last night to make the necessary arrangements for bringing out the full Republican vote of the ward and prevent any intended frauds on the ballot. Hon. W. H. Maddox, Especially English ladies, staying out. At least, one would fancy so; for the tradition still lingers with us of the times when the typical Englishwoman was regarded as the incarnation of a purity approaching to austerity, and ladies of indifferent character were constrained to ape their betters. The Mesdames Cruchecassé might, at the risk of forfeiting all of the Englishwoman's virtue and the chilly prudery of her demeanor; the men might admire and sneer and call her bégueule. But, on the whole, when the Englishman could carry his head high, and declare himself a civis Romanus, he never felt more proud of his country than when he contrasted the behavior of his countrywomen with that of their foreign sisters. Now all that is changed. An Englishman in difficulties must stand, as well he may, on his individual character, and say as little as may be about his Roman citizenship. If any one is entitled to boast or to bully on the strength of his citizenship, it is the subject of that new Holy Roman Empire, whose capital is Berlin, and whose prophet is Bismarck. We know better than foreigners that, if Englishmen abroad have for a time lost something of their self-respect, it is owing to the timid, penny-wise policy and the sentimental delusions of a Government, and not to any decay of the national spirit. But morals are known to deteriorate when nations suffer in their self-respect, and the greater laxity of manners among our traveling countrywomen is an unpleasant coincidence, to say the least of it. Time was when, if you saw one of them regularly seated at the tables, you could pronounce off-hand on her character with little danger of doing her injustice. Anonyms risked her rouleaux when out for her Summer tour, or some fallen Becky Sharpe came down in faded finery from her garret to try and double the florin or two she had obtained from doubtful charity. Now every one seems to make their game, the women as freely and boldly as the men. They may not stake so heavily as Jewish bankers from Frankfort, Russian princes, Magyar boyards, or Mediterranean monarchs, and pour cause; but they play out to the limits of their tether, and often their tether appears to be a pretty long one. It is not a case of borrowing a florin or two from husband, father, or brother, throwing them endways on to the cloth, blushing to the roots of the hair, and seeing them roll about, they explain to the croupiers where they desire to place them, and flushly showing white teeth and dimples when the stakes were swept up by the remorseless rake. Not at all. Nowadays the English maid or matron draws in her chair in most business-like fashion, smilingly receiving the cards to cut from a gentleman with the brand of the galleys on his features, and possibly the mark of the chain on his ankle. On the other side she rubs shoulders with a lady much better known than respected in the Parisian dancing-saloons, and about whose vocation, indeed, there could be no manner of doubt, even if she did not afficher it by a costume excessively decolletée and a tawdry blaze of Palais Royal jewelry. Not that in her gorgeous show she has greatly the disadvantage of her English neighbor. Except that the jewels of the one are real and those of the other sham—that the chains of "respectability" are real, while those of disreputability are mosaic—the pair might be intimates if not sisters. Possibly a week or so may bring them yet nearer identity when the couple of ladies have established a play-table intimacy, and the English jewels have gone to the mont-de-piété. For in the frankness of the excitement of winning and losing at the game goes on, the Englishwoman exchanges congratulations or condolences, or holds counsel with her neighbors and so the intimacy warms fast. The young matrons may show themselves the more easy at first, on the strength of their matronhood; but in the greater exuberance of their girlish spirits the maids soon make up for lost time when once they are fairly intoxicated with the excitement. The intoxication is kept up, for when their impressionable natures have been steeped in the spirit of the game, they can never keep themselves away from the tables. There they are the first thing in the morning, when the great professional players, worn with long years of dissipation, are still trifling over their breakfast. There they are the last thing at night, scrambling for Napoleons with fingers sparkling with rings, among all the rascality and roguerie of Europe. There are women among them, too—public characters they choose to make themselves, so we need not scruple to write of them—who bring their children as regularly as they come themselves, and, strange to say, they are not ostracised altogether by their own sex, while they are the objects of assiduous gallantry to traveling countrymen of character who may be presumed to possess humanity and sense. Yet, for our own part, were we to embody the Spirit of Evil, we should scarcely know how to incarnate it more appropriately than in an attractive woman who, day after day, seats her child beside her in a hell, just at the age when he is most impressionable. Women of the kind may be the exception, but then they are generally tolerated in such English society as lingers on at a German gambling-place when the lights are being extinguished for the season and the best company has departed. Be the cause of this sad change what it may, we may be thankful that the German Government has decided to remove this temptation from the way of weak natures, now that the old conventional restraints are being so fast relaxed. Should any other country extend its hospitality to the tables after the scandals of the last few months in Germany, at least it will do it with open eyes.

ITALY AND FRANCE.

Anti-French Feeling in Victor Emmanuel's Kingdom.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

The expulsion of Prince Napoleon and his wife from France has aroused a very strong feeling against the Government of M. Thiers in the Italian Press, and even the ministerial paper, Opinione, severely censures the measure as a gratuitous offense to Italy. The Gazzetta d'Italia says M. Thiers' attempt to explain away "the insult offered to an Italian princess," by assuring M. Vimercati that he did not know the Princess Clotilde was in France with her husband, will deceive nobody, and that all Italy will believe that "he wished to revenge himself on the daughter because he could not strike at the father." The times are past, pursues the Gazzetta, "when Paris and Florence could be sent to Italy in the same breath. This is not the way to maintain friendly relations between two kindred races, and M. Thiers may be sure that we in Italy are well aware how low the French nation must have sunk thus to use violence against a woman who commands respect by her virtues and by her misfortunes." It is said that M. Thiers has sent further explanations of the matter by telegram to M. Visconti-Venosta, the Italian Foreign Minister, but whatever may be the disposition of the Government, there can be no doubt that the incident has produced a decided coldness toward France among the Italian people. All the friendly articles which were published in the Press immediately after the war, and which had almost entirely ceased during the late reaction in favor of France, are now again making their appearance, and all the old grievances against the French Government, such as the presence of the French man-of-war Prince Jerome at Civita Vecchia, the laying down of mines at the entrance of the Mont Cenis tunnel, and the officious intervention of M. Fournier in the question of the religious corporations, are brought up as so many evidences of the unfriendliness and insincerity of M. Thiers' policy.
